Eun Ah Choi's presentation

Johan Almenberg's presentation

Björn Jansson's presentation

Panel discussion begins

What are your perspectives on the attempts to harmonize insolvency laws in Europe?

Is the number of listings a good proxy for the share of economic activity?

What is the capital market used for today amid a lot of talk about buybacks and not so much about issuance?

The EU listing act mainly looks at the supply side. Are there any discussions on making changes on the demand side?

It is sometimes said that CEOs of listed companies only think about their next quarterly report and press conference, creating a "short-termism", while private equity firms have a longer-term view. Is that an argument for de-listing?
