Global Governance

Democratic Legitimacy

So in some Ways the Only Examples I Can Find Where Global Governance Has Been Strengthened the Recent Years Is in Part in You Precisely and Keeping Government Out so Governments in Heaven some Ways Conspired To Keep Themselves Out So and this Is Responsive to the Argument that What Public Authorities Need To Do Is To Tie Their Own Hands because They Can't Be Trusted and To Leave Private Actors To Deliver the Goods Now Suppose We Don't Think Either that those Private Actors Are Delivering the Goods or that the Goods That They'Re Delivering Are the Kind We Want Then We Might Want Not To Ditch Something like the World Trade Organization

Wrong Is the Response Then To Say Rely on Private Civil Society To Deal with the Problem or Would the Require or Would the Requirement Be some Kind of Public Action across Different Countries That Are Agreeing on some Kind of Enforcement Regime and I'M Arguing that Too Much the Attention Has Been on the Former and that We Should Really Try and Reinvigorate the Latter I Do the Drug Trade Is against What I Just Said One of the Few Cases Where There Actually Is a Lot of Interest in Getting Enforcement because It's Something That Is a Hot-Button Issue but Something like Human Trafficking It's Not Getting the Headlines in the Way that It Should unlike Cocaine from It from Latin The Issue of whether or Not the Outsiders Will Undermine the Ability of the Welfare State To Finance Itself Raises a Whole Separate Set of Questions I Assume some Research of those That those that Set of Questions Is Actually Overblown and that Actually Precisely What some of these Countries Need Is New Entrance to the Workforce How To Tie Workforce Participation to Social Benefits Is a Complicated Question the Europeans Are Struggling with that but Here in this Country We Don't Have that Concern the Issue Would Be Rather the Question of New Immigrants Changing the Wage Level Basically but on that Issue I Think There's a Parallelism between New Immigrants Coming In and Lowering Wages and Capital Threatening or Mu or either Threatening To Move or Moving Elsewhere and Lowering the Wage Level

But on that Issue I Think There's a Parallelism between New Immigrants Coming In and Lowering

Wages and Capital Threatening or Mu or either Threatening To Move or Moving Elsewhere and Lowering the Wage Level so There's a There's an Exact Parallelism There and that's Why I Said that Probably Capital and Labor Should Gain Freedom Together in Degrees with the Constraint or the Brakes Being Applied on the Speed with Which that Happens Concerns about the Integrity of a Domestic Community I Don't Know that that's the Best I Can Do I Think It's a It's a Hard One There's no Easy Answer There

And I Think What One Thing We Should Do I Think Which Is Important and this Is Just a Sort of a Philosophical Issue It's Been Common in these Discussions To Bundle Trade and Charity and I Think We Probably Shouldn't so You Might Say that We Owe More to a Country That Is Truly Fourth World in Which People Are Are Not Able To Meet a Very Basic Minimum but What We Owe Them May or May Not Be Commerce It May Be It May Be Aid and if You Take if You Take that and but What's Compos Been Common in Economics Is To Assume that There's an Invisible Hand

The Argument that We Might End Up Having a Very Strange World in Which We'Re all Using Paper Currencies Controlled by National Governments Not by Transnational Economy Would Have Been Very Strange yet We Were There within a Few Decades because We Had To Be in the Case the Reason for that Is that the Gold Standard Didn't Allow a Proper Balance between the Ease of Transnational Flows and the the Need for National Autonomy over a Set of Important Areas like Domestic Economic Control so It Was in Response to that that We Had this Keynesian Mid-Century Moment and What I'M Suggesting Is that We Can Learn Something from that

And I Think that that Financial Transfer Mechanism Is the Kind of Thing That I'M Thinking that We Have To Try and Work on that's Global Governance That's Not Private Actors Exactly that's Public Authorities Trying To Deal with a Problem That Is Global whether or Not We Can Make It Work as a Different Matter and whether that's the Right Solution I Don't Know but I'M I'M Hopefully I'M Given Hope by the Fact that There Are So Many Efforts of this Kind and Then the Problem Is They Seem Not To Often Have Enough Force behind Them and I Don't Know How To Think about that but I Mean Sounder You Mentioned the Un and So On and and the Un Has a Lot of Agencies That Deal with Problems and Have those Problems as Their Official as Their Official Sort of It's in Their Portfolio and Exactly Why They Haven't Been Able To Do More Something That Is Is Curious but but I Think that You Have to that's the Form of the Solution

' S Just It's a Minor Note in What Is a Very Long Examination a General Theory but but that's There and I Think that One Mises and Hayek Picked that Up and We'Re Worried about that and the Easiest Way To Knock Out that State Role They I Think They Thought Was To Go Back to Gold It Wasn't That Long Ago When They Were Writing that Actually the World Had Been Governed by Gold and What Would Happen if You Were Going Buy Gold You Couldn't Have Extensive State Borrowing in Order To Do Keynesian Counter-Cyclical Spending Is Not Just a Question of Monetary Policy It's Also Question of Fiscal Policy
