Either way., here's some tips, to help you get better at reading and speed reading - and ...
Fluent readers of English read between 200 and 400 words on average per minute.
When reading we tend to go back and forth across a sentence to work out it's meaning.
Speed reading overloads the short-term memory so there's less retention of information.
Comprehension improves when we read on paper rather than a screen... but scientists can't agree why.
When we read on a screen, we blink around half as often as we would on paper.
So your eyes can get dry and uncomfortable.
