Southern Historical Society Papers Volume 3 - Primary Source Edition

Excerpt from Southern Historical Society Papers, 1891, Vol. 19 Upon this hulk, according to plans furnished by Lieutenant John M. Brooke. Of the Confederate States Navy (though the merit of the design is also claimed for Naval Constructor John L. Porter), was built a house or shield, ' &c. This does a grave injustice to a gallant old Confederate and Virginian, who sacrificed his all upon the altar Of his country; and had Mr. Newton known fully the facts it is believed that he would have published his article with the names above reversed.
