Principles of Personal Preparedness.

You can start out by acquiring new skills, such as learning how to make a fire, purify water or learn combat skills.

to ensure you are not caught unprepared when disaster strikes.

Personal responsibility

The first principle towards becoming prepared is to take responsibility for yourself.

The second example relates to law enforcement or security services.

Principle 1 requires you to take responsibility for your own preparedness.

the third principle considers how you will stay alive during and after a disruptive event.

Sustainable preparedness does not only consider what to do if disaster strikes tomorrow; but also how to survive if a major disaster does not strike in your lifetime.

Obedience.

If your worldview suggests that you are the ultimate authority in your life

This strategy can take various forms and aim to reach different outcomes. What I have presented here are six principles you can consider in developing your preparedness strategy.

Thank you for watching, and all the best on your journey to resilience.
