When You Look at Your Heart Rate It's Telling You How Hard Are You Trying this Was Telling You It's Not Telling You What Your Performance Is It Doesn't Say Anything Up At All about the Outcome of the Workout or the Race It Only Tells You How Hard You'Re Working Right Now but if You Go Back to the Other Category Again the Intensity Category another Measure There that Athletes Could Use besides Speed Would Be Power on the Bicycle That's a Measure of Performance the Person Who Comes across the Finish Line First in a Time Trial Will More than Likely Have the Highest Power Output of the Race

And Which Is Most Commonly What We See in Sports like Triathlon or Time Traveling Is the Athlete Will Have the Highest Power Will Have the Best Performance They'LI Come across the Line First Especially if We'Re Talking about Watts per Kilogram in Other Words Power Relative to Body Weight You'LI See the Same Thing so Power Is a Measure Performance It's Not a Measure of Effort It's a

Major Performance Having both of those Categories All the Time Is Very Beneficial So if You Can Measure for Example Heart Rate or Ready To Proceed Exertion One to Ten Efficiency Is a Great Marker for How You're Doing as an Athlete So Let's Say that We Could Measure that Which You Can all You'd Have To Do Is Is for Example Go for a Run You Do a Hard and Run Warm-Up You Do a Hard Effort Let's Say It's a 5k Race You Do a Hard Effort 5k Race and When You Get all Done You've Got Your Average Speed for the Race Don't Use Your Pace by the Way Pace Is Hard To Work with You Can Figure Out Your Average Speed for the Race

Video Service That Has Our Entire Industry Leading Content Library under One Roof as Streaming any Time You Want to any Computer and Mobile Device and It Really Is Something That You Can Use as an Athlete as a Coach to To Help Improve Your Your Performance and It's Got Not Only People like Joe but It's Got Not Only Joe Himself but It's Got Really the Highest Level Coaches Sports Scientists Sports Psychologists It's all in There It's It's Complete with Downloadable Presentations of Slides That You Can Store Digitally so You Can Review and Study at any Time and You Know We've Talked about this You Know Think of the the Value of Having this Information like Being Able To Pull Up and Not Wait for a Webcast That's Scheduled a Week Out in Advance and You Know You You Have To Remember To Watch It at a Certain Time or At Least Go to One Link for a Replay but Think of the Value of Having All this Type of Information at Your Fingertips

Miré los muros de la patria mía (2006)

En este completo manual se ofrece de modo exhaustivo, y a la vez ágil y manejable, un graduado recorrido por la historia de nuestras letras. La literatura en lengua española es, sin duda, una de las aportaciones más valiosas a la cultura universal. A lo largo de los siglos, a uno y otro lado del Atlántico se ha ido forjando un repertorio amplio, variado y extremadamente rico, innovador y revolucionario en sus momentos estelares, razonable adaptación de tendencias foráneas en otras etapas.

Aproximación al estilo de Quevedo

El presente libro, cuyo origen fue un simposio celebrado en la Universidad de Amsterdam, responde a la necesidad percibida en la docencia universitaria de poseer un acercamiento teórico y práctico a la poesía. El lector encontrará en estas páginas una importante selección de ensayos que permiten revisar un tema poco estudiado en el mundo hispánico, la teoría de la poesía, así como trabajos en que se efectúa una aguda interpretación de la obra poética. Aparece en este libro por primera vez una consideración de la poesía como un discurso ficcional.

This book considers how the modern concept of “conscience” turns the historic commitment on its head, in a way that underlies the decadence of modern society. Steven D. Smith’s books are always anticipated with great interest by scholars, jurists, and citizens who see his work on foundational questions surrounding law and religion as shaping the debate in profound ways. Now, in The Disintegrating Conscience and the Decline of Modernity, Smith takes as his starting point Jacques Barzun’s provocative assertion that “the modern era” is coming to an end. Smith considers the question of decline by focusing on a single theme—conscience—that has been central to much of what has happened in Western politics, law, and religion over the past half-millennium. Rather than attempting to follow that theme step-by-step through five hundred years, the book adopts an episodic and dramatic approach by focusing on three main figures and particularly portentous episodes: first, Thomas More’s execution for his conscientious refusal to take an oath mandated by Henry VIII; second, James Madison’s contribution to Virginia law in removing the proposed requirement of religious toleration in favor of freedom of conscience; and, third, William Brennan’s pledge to separate his religious faith from his performance as a Supreme Court justice. These three episodes, Smith suggests, reflect in microcosm decisive turning points at which Western civilization changed from what it had been in premodern times to what it is today. A commitment to conscience, Smith argues, has been a central and in some ways defining feature of modern Western civilization, and yet in a crucial sense conscience in the time of Brennan and today has come to mean almost the opposite of what it meant to Thomas More. By scrutinizing these men and episodes, the book seeks to illuminate subtle but transformative changes in the commitment to conscience—changes that helped to bring Thomas More’s world to an end and that may also be contributing to the disintegration of (per Barzun) “the modern era.”

Desde el inicio de Lope de Vega en la narrativa hasta la muerte de sor Juana Inés de la Cruz se extiende, en las letras hispanas, un siglo marcado por la novedad. Comenzada su carrera dramática en el ocaso del siglo XVI, el Fénix la define en su Arte nuevo de hacer comedias, y la feliz fórmula bien vale para caracterizar la preocupación de sus contemporáneos por realizar una profunda renovación a partir de los cimientos renacentistas. La muerte de Herrera en 1597 coincide con el apogeo de la generación poética encabezada por Lope y Góngora, consagrada editorialmente en el cambio de centuria, para diseminarse en poco más de una década con la polémica en torno a la “nueva poesía”. En los mismos años un ya maduro Cervantes llevaba a su culminación el “arte nuevo de hacer novelas”, dando ejemplo en todas las modalidades genéricas con un giro radical en los modelos heredados. A su zaga, discursos, géneros, autores y obras seguirán una senda que, como Ícaro, se hundirá en el mar tras rozar las regiones del sol. Desde esta perspectiva se aborda el despliegue de una escritura, soslayando las simplificaciones que encierran las letras del período en el devenir del imperio o la enfocan desde la perspectiva renacentista, para indagar en la dinámica de renovación articulada con cambios de muy distinto signo, entre lo material y lo ideológico.

A Comparative History of Literatures in the Iberian Peninsula is the second comparative history of a new subseries with a regional focus, published by the Coordinating Committee of the International Comparative Literature Association. As its predecessor for East-Central Europe, this two-volume history distances itself from traditional histories built around periods and movements, and explores, from a comparative viewpoint, a space considered to be a powerful symbol of inter-literary relations. Both the geographical pertinence and its symbolic condition are obviously discussed, when not even contested. Written by an international team of researchers who are specialists in the field, this history is the first attempt at applying a comparative approach to the plurilingual and multicultural literatures in the Iberian Peninsula. The aim of comprehensiveness is abandoned in favor of a diverse and extensive array of key issues for a comparative agenda. A Comparative History of Literatures in the Iberian Peninsula undermines the primacy claimed for national and linguistic boundaries, and provides a geo-cultural account of literary inter-systems which cannot otherwise be explained.
