Meade Cotton, an Upland Long-staple Variety Replacing Sea Island

In 1916, William Somerset Maugham (1874-1965) travelled to the Pacific to research his novel "The Moon and Sixpence," based on the life of Paul Gauguin. This was the first of those journeys through the late-Imperial world of the 1920s and 1930s which were to establish Maugham forever in the popular imagination as the chronicler of the last days of colonialism in India, Southeast Asia, China and the Pacific, although the books on which this reputation rests represent only a fraction of his output.---Maugham reused elements of his Pacific diaries in "The Trembling of a Leaf" (1921), which contains one of his most recognized stories, "Rain," adapted to the stage by John Colton and Clemence Randolph in 1922.

Comparative Spinning Tests of Meade and Sea Island Cottons

Here is a vital new source of "need-to-know" information for cotton industry professionals. Unlike other references that focus solely on growing the crop, this book also emphasizes the cotton industry as a whole, and includes material on the nature of cotton fibers and their processing; cotton standards and classification; and marketing strategies.

Ecological Characterization of the Sea Island Coastal Region of South Carolina and Georgia

"Gardening opens our eyes to the world around us, brings endless hours of fun and joy to our existence, and reveals to us many truths about life in general." In this engaging memoir, Jane Foster shares her love for gardening and living on Block Island. Seasons at Sea Meadow blends practical, coastal gardening tips and techniques with personal insight and reflection. Organizing activities month-by-month, Jane guides the reader through a year in the life of a garden, all the while mixing advice with her unique perspective. Both the garden and the gardener will be the better for it.
