And the Third Thing That Happened Is that the Supreme Court Proved Itself Unusually Solicitous to Marginal Groups Highly Unpopular Religious Groups like Witnesses and Adventists and Pacifists and Atheists and Others Who Had Not Fared Well At All in State Courts or in State Legislatures and Found Very Little Recourse and Protection from the Us Congress As Well Three Major Changes and It's Not Accidental that these Changes Occurred in the 1940s as We Move toward the Creation of a Universal National Law of Religious Freedom and Forcible by the Federal Courts in the First Place We Are Moving toward a National Project in the Mid 20th Century

An Important Source of Inspiration and Instruction to Jurists and Judges and Courts around the World to this Day Interestingly some Would Say Sadly the Supreme Court in the Last Decade or Two Has Retreated Substantially from that Aggressive Protection of Religious Freedom the Court Has Made It Harder To Press Cases through Toughened Standing Requirements When You Can Stand at the Bar To Press Your Case Has Gotten Harder To Achieve the Court Has Allowed Splits in the Lower

Federal Circuits To Linger a Lot Longer with a Great Deal of Confusion amongst Parties as to What How They'Re Going To Be Protected in Their Religious Freedom if They Live in the Third Circuit versus the Ninth Circuit

The Court Has Strongly Encouraged State Legislators To Take Over Religious Freedom Questions through Statutes and Changing those Statutes as Needed in Accordance with Local Political Custom and Fashion the Court Has Shown Strong Separation of Powers Logic To Again Defer the Congress and Let Congress Do a Lot of the Work in Religious Freedom and the Court Has Reduced the Free Exercise and no Establishment Clause Is Effectively to Guarantees of Neutrality on the Face of the Statute Itself and Neutrality or General Applicability in Application of the Statute since 1990 under the Free Exercise Clause and since 2002 under the Establishment Clause both of those Constitutional Guarantees Are Now When Be Just as Promised on the Bench I Suggested that these Are all Perhaps Steps along the Way To Be Incorporating the Religion Clauses from the 14th Amendment

And My the Beginning of My Research Project Process Were Newspaper Archives and Specifically Digital Newspaper Archives because You Can You Can Find an Incredible Amount of Material in a Very Short Time as as Compared to Microfiche in I'D Love To Come to the Library of Congress but It's Much More Convenient To Find these Things at Home so that Was the Really the Beginning in My Process Reading Newspapers Front through the 18th into the 19th Century and I Mentioned in My Closing Statement that You Can Find Many Other Stories Similar to the Story of Islam in Early America and the Newspapers Are a Great Place To Start They Often Warrant Stories Being Written I Found What I Believe Is the the First Dedication of a Chinese Temple in San Francisco in 1852 I Found I Believe that I during the Research of that Book I Understand for the First Time and You Can't Find that unless You Go Back and Read History as It Was as Was Written at the Time in the Press so It's Really a for My Work I Couldn't Do without It both of My Written Work and Now the Work I Do for the Museum So Many Resources Are Also Fully Digital Now Available To Find Them Including for Example the Wonderful Collection of the Library of Virginia

That Kind of Division Is Problematic that I Just Made because We Can Do It that Way but My Top Biggest Issue Is How We Set It in Comparative Perspective from the Sides of India and Ideas Then and Others They'LI Attribute the Success of this Country to the Demonic Values of Religion and Language That's the Way We Read It from the Other Side the Displace Is Very Successful because There's a Commonality around the Use of English and Run Christianity around the Framing of an Identity There Is Much Easier To Frame
