applying the pigment around your object cotton watercolor paper that will withstand multiple washes of color cover the entire surface of my paper with water start adding a sense of depth let this dry completely at least two hours bring the focus to a few light elements painting to create a few leaf shapes adding a little bit of blue up on top do a second layer of paint on the flowers adding a few preliminary petals checking your values and your saturation paint the third layer of color adding darker green on top and then erasing the masking fluid outlining their silhouette with a tip of your brush mixing in some warm green gold highlights adding this cooler color adding a little bit of brown finish off by adding a bit more definition on the petals negative painting to create pretty defined veins on these two leaves cover them with masking fluid and then erase
