Treating rare diseases

How many people have rare diseases?

Disparate traits and how they come together

Seeking chaos

When not to be open minded

Figuring out which goal to go after

Balancing time between bad and good employees

Competence and specialization

Managing diverse temperaments

From baked goods to investment banking

The propagation of employees at the expense of progress

The ethics of profit, iterative exchanges

Sapolsky, the reciprocity bank

Investment, reputation, and the proper embodiment of ethics

Having a clear goal is essential

Zebras and lions, hierarchal systems at play

"True enough," how the immunological system adapts to a target

Applying "true enough" to human thought and the importance of stories

Postmodernist bees

Its near impossible to find your calling if you never go on an adventure

Disparate expertise, and "left brain" specialization

How the classics conserve cultural homogeneity

God must transcend different temperaments and worldviews

Is chaos a prey response?
