The Stone of Light and Life has been stolen. It now rests in the hands of two evil vampires. The two who command the Stone become super vampires. They cannot be destroyed. The fate of immortal humanity hangs in the balance as the vampires set into motion, the takeover of the world. Jadyn cannot destroy them, but when they threaten Christopher's life she races against time to discover a solution to the disaster that the middle realm now finds itself caught up in. Christopher and Jadyn travel to Washington, DC in search of clues that may lead them to the answers that they seek. There, Jadyn discovers allies she never dreamed of meeting. Meanwhile, Christopher finds himself undergoing a mysterious transformation that has him craving blood once again, calling him back to the dark side of the vampire. After he nearly attacks Jadyn, he leaves his beloved wife and unborn child and sets out on his own to uncover the mystery behind his change. What he discovers is not what he expected. Jadyn is now left on her own to find a way to fight the two super vampires. Alone for several days she realizes that she is dying, for her bond to Christopher has strengthened to such a degree that she cannot live without him. As she slowly fades away from life, she continues to fight to uncover a way to save immortal humanity from certain destruction. How will she defeat the evil without Christopher? How will she survive without him? What if he returns to the evil side of the vampire? How can she stop something that cannot be destroyed? Has the Guardian finally met her match?

Death of Darkness

"Seth has led the Immortal Guardians for thousands of years. With them fighting by his side, he has protected humans from psychotic vampires, defeated corrupt mercenary armies, defended military bases under attack, and more. But the latest enemy to rise against the Immortal Guardians has proven to be a formidable one, wielding almost as much power as Seth. His goal is simple. He wants to watch the world burn. And he will use every means at his disposal to accomplish it. Seth and his Immortal Guardians have succeeded thus far in staving off Armageddon despite heartbreaking losses. But they have never before faced such danger. Leah Somerson has suffered losses of her own. It has taken her a long time to rebuild her life and find some semblance of peace. Then one night a tall, dark, powerful immortal with what appears to be the weight of the world on his shoulders stumbles into her shop, and everything changes. Peace and contentment are no longer enough. Now she wants more. She wants to find happiness. She wants to erase the darkness in Seth's eyes and replace it with love and laughter. She knows he's different in ways that make most fear him. Even some of his immortal brethren keep a careful distance. But Leah will not. Nor will she shy away when danger strikes. Contains mature themes."--Provided by publisher

Master Unchained (Stealth Guardians #2)

SUNDAY TIMES, NEW STATESMAN and TLS BOOKS OF THE YEAR At the heart of all human experience lies our obsession with death. For many years we turned to religion for answers, but with the twentieth century came ideas from evolution and politics to suggest that our lives - and afterlives - were in our own hands. Such ideas went on to have both trivial and terrible effects: from a sweeping craze of séances to the mass-murders of the Stalinist terror. Gray raises vital questions about the 'truths' science can offer, the technology we are still exploiting for immortality - and exactly what it means to be human.

This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1903 edition. Excerpt: ... CHAPTER XVI MEANS OF PREVENTING CRUELTY --AN EARLY HUMANE EDUCATION NECESSARY Some of the forms of cruelty--Man should seek a better pastime than sporting at the sacrifice of suffering--Kindness is an indication of greatness. Let Us next consider some of the means by which the sin of cruelty to animals may be corrected. As the propensity to cruelty often makes itself apparent in very early life, all who have the early training of the youthful mind ought to make it a distinct object of their care to check such tendencies. No parent or teacher can be considered as doing his or her duty who does not repress such tendencies by instilling better and wiser views of humanity. Mark with displeasure every act of neglect and cruelty; teach the children to view all living things as objects of God's care, and that He is interested in their happiness and displeased with any evil that is done to them. Some leading views and predominant inclinations never fail to take possession of the young while the mind is pliant and flexible and these become habits and are moulded into character, either virtuous or vicious. It is the natural tendency of many children to be cruel and to do all sorts of mischief; consequently if the business of an early education was more thoroughly understood and proper restraints used to prevent cruelty, there would be fewer criminals to contend with. J. W. Cottrell, general superintendent of the Detective Association of America, made the following statement: "With twenty-five years' experience as an officer, I know of but few criminals who were taught to love animals, and searching for the cause of crime, I find that the lack of humane education is the principal one." George T. Angell, President of the American Humane Education...

Immortal Warrior

"I'm something like sixty-thousand years old, and I've probably thought more about my own death than any living being has thought about any subject, ever. I used to be unduly preoccupied with what might constitute a "good death", although interestingly, this has always been an after-the-fact analysis. What I mean is, following a near-death experience, I'll generally perform a quiet review of the circumstances and judge whether that death would have been objectively good, by whatever metric one uses for that kind of thing. I'm not nearly that self-reflective while in the midst of said near-death experience. Facing death, the predominant thought is always not like this." A disease threatening the lives of everyone—human and non-human—has been loosed upon the world, by an arch-enemy Adam didn't even know he had. That's just the first of his problems. Adam's also in jail, facing multiple counts of murder, at least a few of which are accurate. He may never see the inside of a courtroom, because there remains a bounty on his head—put there by the aforementioned arch-enemy—that someone is bound to try to collect while he's stuck behind bars. Meanwhile, Adam's sitting on some tantalizing evidence that there might be a cure, but to find it, he's going to have to get out of jail, get out of the country, and track down the man responsible. He can't do any of that alone, but he also can't rely on any of his non-human friends for help, not when they're all getting sick. What he needs is a particularly gifted human, who can do things no other human is capable of. He knows one such person. He calls himself a fixer, and he's Adam's—and possibly the world's—last hope. That's provided he believes any of it. Immortal: Last Call is the sixth book in the Immortal Novel Series, and also the end of a long journey for one immortal man.

Demon Unleashed

Bast spent the last thousand years in the darkness. Now that she is out, she wants to find her priests and start over with her life. She wants to avenge herself and her priests. Bast reaches out to her family to see if they will help her and her priests. Set made up lies about her and had her banished into the darkness—not a good place for a sun goddess. But that was where she spent a thousand years planning her revenge. She knows, with the help of her family and her priests, she can and will win the war to save humanity from Set's evil intentions if her family comes through and she gets through all that will be thrown her way. She knows where one of her priests is and when she can convince him to help her with her quest to avenge themselves. When they find each other and fight for the sake of humanity, will they come out on top? The help for humanity will come, but how swiftly? You never know. No matter what, finding her priests will cure the heartache she has had for a millennium. They are all important to her, more of a family than her own family. The ability to protect them is all she wants to do. Keep them safe from Set and his evilness. She just wants to bring peace to the world. A peace that the world has never known. One where everyone has a voice and everyone can be happy. A place where you can have a family and a dream. Will the dream come true? Only if you can believe in yourself and fight for your voice to be heard. Bring your family back to being in a place where you can keep them and the rest of humanity safe from the heartache and sadness of loss.

Bast, Guardian of Humanity

Boys, cars, listening to the right music and trying to fit in. These are Danielle's main concerns in life ... apart from protecting her sister from her wicked stepfather. Then her school is invaded by demons and Danielle is dragged kicking and screaming into the eternal struggle between bad and not-so-bad. She joins Longinus, the 2500 year old Roman soldier who used to be her history teacher. He tells her she is a Guardian, an immortal offshoot of humanity, charged with guiding the progress of civilisation and fighting the demons who threaten to bring forth another Dark Age of ignorance and superstition. They are joined by Vlad the Impaler, who may or may not be a vampire, Joan of Arc, who may or may not be Longinus' girlfriend, and a demon named Stanley, who may or may not be Satan. The Guardians are the stuff of legend, but this is Danielle's story. She will learn to use her newfound powers, she will learn to fight, and finally she will decide where she stands in this struggle.

Guardians

"Thrown into an unfamiliar world and hunted by those who desire to use her for her gifts, she has no choice but to trust in one man, a Guardian assigned to protect her and to keep her safe from the darkness that would surely enslave or destroy her."--Back cover.

Doctor Faustef (versus Lucifer in the Fight for Immortality of the Human Race) (The 2nd book of the FAUSTEF TRILOGY)

Motorcycle mechanic and biker Scott Thompson isn't the laid-back loner he makes everybody believe. Three years ago he was known as Ace, and belonged to an elite group of agents in a top secret CIA program. However, the preternatural ability that made him an invaluable asset to the government could now become his downfall, for he has to resist acting upon his premonitions, or risk exposing himself to the enemies responsible for the destruction of the Stargate program and the murder of his mentor. When his skill alerts him to a looming disaster bound to kill dozens of innocents, he is compelled to take action. To save her position from planned budget cuts, Phoebe Chadwick needs to prove to her editor that she is a brilliant journalist with a knack for sniffing out a juicy story. When the mysterious Scott prevents a tragic accident that could have killed her and many others, she tries to interview him. But the handsome stranger is a reluctant hero unwilling to answer her probing questions. Bad boy Scott instantly feels the sizzling chemistry between him and the persistent reporter, and makes a decision he fears will bite him in the ass soon: he allows Phoebe to get close—not only to his body, but also to his heart, always wondering when somebody will discover his secret. NOTE: This book was previously published under the title Run (Cut & Run, Phoenix Code) in collaboration with Lara Adrian. About the series Gifted with precognitive skills and trained by the CIA in a top-secret program that not even the top brass of the agency was aware, the Stargate agents were once the nation's most powerful secret asset. Betrayed by unknown enemies, unable to trust anyone—not even one another—the Stargate Agents hold the key to unmasking a conspiracy steeped in greed, power and revenge. To survive, they'll have to solve what lies behind the recurring premonitions they experience, and stop an impending disaster. In 2085, humankind is at the brink of extinction. A mutated virus originating from a worldwide pandemic in 2025 has rendered 99% of women infertile, yet has no effect on men. The only hope for the survival of mankind is to send young men back in time to find fertile women before the virus infects them. However, the space time continuum may not be disturbed since any change in the past may wipe out the future.

Therefore, only women known to have died during the 2025 pandemic may be chosen. But will they come willingly? Carter Ambrose is the first young man to travel back in time and assigned to bring back Julie Schneider, a young woman fated to die in the first wave of the virus. However, something goes wrong during the time jump and Carter suddenly finds himself racing against time to win Julie's trust and affection so he can convince her to come back to the future with him.
