Annual Lecture: Trauma Geographies: Broken Bodies and Lethal Landscapes by antipodeonline

1,345 views 5 years ago 1 hour, 37 minutes - Antipode RGS-IBG 2018 Annual Lecture Trauma

Geographies,: Broken Bodies and Lethal Landscapes Speaker: Derek Gregory.

This Poem by Major John McCrae in Flanders Fields Is Read from Coast to Coast to Coast in Flanders Fields the Poppies Grow between the Crosses Row on Row It's an Extraordinary Memorial to the Death of His Close Friend and to the Death of So Many in War but What Often Gets Lost for View Is that John McCrae Was a Medical Officer and He Wrote that Poem Sitting on the Tailboard of a Truck at Essex Farm Advanced Dressing Station in Flanders so behind that Poem behind that Dressing Station Were Ragged Columns of Broken Bodies Moving across the Landscape

Sometimes They Would Arrive at a Siding To Discover that the Hospital Was So Full It Could Take Up Most Two or Three Cases and the Rest Had To Travel on to Destinations Unknown but Eventually if They Survived the Journey They Arrived at a Base Hospital on the Coast of France from There after Several Days if Their Wound Was Judged a Blighty Wound They Were Moved across the Channel on Hospital Ships once the Ship Docked They Were Unloaded onto Yet Other Hospital Trains the Most Seriously Wounded Didn't Travel Far from Ports like Southampton but the Rest Including those Still with Serious Injuries Moved Up to London Yet Others Were Taken Still Further in a Sense the Further
You Traveled the Less Serious Your Wound

It Wasn't a Smoothly Oiled Functioning Machine It Broke Down It's Slowed It Collapsed in all Sorts of Ways It Posed the Most Extraordinary Problems of Logistics and of Course Even More Important than the System Collapsing Was the Failure of So Many Broken Bodies To Make It and the Journey Itself Was a Paradox because It Was Supposed To Be a Journey to Safety to Healing To Care and yet the Journey Itself Even and Precisely because There Were So Many Attempts To Speed It Up Often Exacerbated Not Only the Pain

It Was as an a Card and Coin Points Out in the Politics of War a Taylora Stoop Roche to War Which Was Designed Intervene As Rapidly as Possible as Close to the Fighting as Possible To Send As Many Men Back to the Fighting as Possible and Roughly Four out of Five of those Injured on the Western Front Were Returned to the Fight Now this Was a War in Which of Course Civilians Were Vulnerable They Got Sick but More to the Point They Were Wounded by Shells by Gas Attacks but for the Most Part Civilian Casualties Were Treated in Place Often by the Military Few of Them Were Evacuated Rather They Were Delivered Directly and As Soon as Possible into the French So It Becomes Possible Not Only for the Combat Medical Technician To Render Vital First-Aid and Often Very Sophisticated First-Aid in the First 10 Minutes but Also for the Platoon the Patrol To Immediately Call for Medical Evacuation They Do that by Issuing What's Called a Nine Liner Which Spells Out the Severity of the Injury and the Speed Required To Get the Casualty to Hospital and that Then Brings Us to the Second Major Innovation Which Is Of Course the Helicopter a Helicopter Which Is Used in Different Ways by the Us and the British Army

The Usual Narrative Is One Which Talks about Civilian Casualties Arising from Insurgent Attacks but as Jennifer Terry Points Out What's Missing from that Narrative Are those Wounds Caused by the Myriad Air Drop Detonating Devices Elevated to the Status of Why Are Not Why those Wounds Not Elevated to the Status of Signature Wounds Suffered by Civilians the Answer She Says Is because the Body Is Suffering these Wounds Are those of the Other Their Abject and Disavowed Wounds So Let Me Give You Two Examples of What Happens this Is the Story of a Young Girl

His Companion Literally Held Her Together for the Drive Back to the Small Market Town a Two Mile Journey during Which She Made no Sound His Companion Then Offered To Drive Her To Seek Medical Help He Set Out after 8 O'clock Again It's Safer To Travel at Night There's Much Less Risk of an Attack from the Air He Was Following the Road to Asadabad They Didn't Arrive at the Hospital There until after 10 O'clock a Full 7 Hours after the Attack but When They Arrived at the Hospital There Was Very Little that that Local Afghan Hospital Could Do

They Didn't Arrive at the Hospital There until after 10 O'clock a Full 7 Hours after the Attack but When They Arrived at the Hospital There Was Very Little that that Local Afghan Hospital Could Do and So They Sent Her On Again by Road to the Nearest Hospital in Jalalabad 57 Miles Away at Quarter past Midnight She Was Admitted Jalalabad Hospital but Again Apart from Minor Treatment There Was Remarkably Little that Hospital Could Do for Her and So on the Third Day She Was Flown by Helicopter to Kabul the First Helicopter Had Trouble Landing and Left without Her another Came around Midnight and Eventually She Was Taken to a Role 3 Hospital at Kabul Airport

5 or 10 Minutes in the Case of a Drone Strike First Responders Are Held Back for Fear of a Second Double Town Strike and There's Often Not Even a Golden Hour that Hour Stretches in Two Hours Stretches in Two Days some Are Luckier Is a Second Example a Story of a Young Boy Sourabh Following a Drone Strike in Uragaan Province on the 21st of February 2010 or More Accurately Strike Carried Out by Two Combat Helicopters under Direction from a Drone Crew Several Hours after the Strike When It Became Clear that the Victims Were Likely Not Insurgents

Syria

Now at the Beginning of the War in Syria It Was Increasingly Difficult To Move Injured Patients Around because They Would Be Arrested and Detained and Very Often Tortured by the Security Services so all Sorts of Stations Were Improvised To Care for the Injured outside the Regular Hospital System One Man Volunteered His Bedroom in this Example Here and in this Case a Skilled Trained Doctor Unpacked One of the Medical Kits He and His Colleagues Had Hidden in every Town in the Area in a Sense They Had He Said Stuffed an Operating Room into a Suitcase and Anesthesiologist Recommended Dosages by Cellphone

And Then from 2012 the Air Force Started Bombing Bridges and Mountain Roads Used by those Trying To Flee into Lebanon from Time to Time the International Committee of the Red Cross Managed To Negotiate Evacuation Ambulances Met the Injured at the Border and Then Transferred Them to Clinics Almost Always in the First Instance in the Baqar Valley Now these Clinics Were Makeshift Affairs but Many of Them Were Also Clandestine because if You Know Your Geography You Will Know that the Baqar Valley Is a Hezbollah Stronghold and Hezbollah Was Busy Fighting on the Other Side of the Border in Support of the Assad Regime
