The test administrator records the time by starting the stopwatch as soon as the examinee picks up the first wrench

All of the hardware on each row must be removed before moving on to the next row

It is best to keep the hardware from each row separate after removing them from the first upright

The hardware from the bottom row once removed can be transferred directly over the other upright bottom row

All of the bolts on each row must be mounted completely before moving on to the next row

The examinee must tighten the bolts tight enough so that they can not be removed with the fingers

As soon as the last bolt is tightened on the right side, the examiner stops the stopwatch and records the time
