A TIMELESS ROMANCE ANTHOLOGY: BLIND DATE COLLECTION: Featuring New York Times best-selling author Victorine E. Lieske and Amazon bestseller Sariah Wilson. Readers will love this collection of six novellas—three contemporary and three historical—all with one thing in common: Romance. Three Historical Romance Novellas THE PROMISE THAT KATY DID, by Annette Lyon: After the death of Sue Ellen, the closest thing she has to family, Katy knows it's time to leave the house she's lived in as a guest and start over in the city. She quickly secures a job, but before leaving, she must honor the unusual promise she made to Sue Ellen on her deathbed: meet with Mr. Balmer. The elderly gentleman arranges for his grandson Barrett to escort her to a town dance. That evening, shy Katy quickly feels at ease with her partner. If her new position weren't taking her from town morning after next, perhaps something could develop between them. But Barrett may not feel the same about her, and besides, they don't have enough time to find out. A LADY OF SENSE, by Sarah M. Eden: Eleanor Sherwood has lived her entire life under her parents' thumb with little hope of escape. When they choose the unbearable Mr. Broadstead to be her future husband, she begs her father for another option. He arranges for her to meet Peter Havensham, who quickly proves himself a good and kindhearted gentleman, completely different from Mr. Broadstead, and utterly undeserving of a forced engagement. Eleanor cannot bring herself to prey upon Peter's honor, but neither can she imagine a life with Mr. Broadstead. What is a lady to do when faced with such an impossible choice? A SECOND CHANCE, by Heather B. Moore: Virginia needs a new start in order to recover from her broken marriage and vicious gossips of her neighborhood in Boston, so when her best friend Millie invites Virginia to Chicago, she goes to live with her friend's family. But when Millie asked Virginia to participate in a double-date, Virginia knows she's not ready to start dating again. Reluctantly she agrees, only to find out that Max might just be the man who can repair the cracks in her heart. Three Contemporary Romance Novellas BRAELYNN'S BLIND DATE, by Victorine E. Lieske. When Braelynn agrees to go on a blind date, she thinks she's hit the jackpot. Tyler is gorgeous and the perfect gentleman. Of course she should have known it was too good to be true. It turns out that Tyler really wasn't Tyler, but a random stranger who went along with Braelynn's mistaken assumption. So, she chalks it up to a dumb mistake until she gets to work Monday morning and discovers that her gorgeous blind date is now her new boss. BIANCA'S HOPE, by Rachel Branton: A blind-date-gone-wrong is not the way Bianca would have chosen to celebrate the news that she might be losing her business, but saying no to the sister who took care of her after their mother's death proves impossible. So for one date, one torturous evening, she'll endure the company of an infuriating, heartless man she has no intention of ever seeing again. She doesn't expect her heart to have other plans. Bianca soon learns that sometimes the unexpected is not only what you need, it's exactly what you've been waiting for all along. BLIND SPOT, by Sariah Wilson: Ria has prepared most of her life to meet her prince, trouble is, her mother keeps yanking her back to reality. So when Ria reads about a country teeming with princes, she drops everything and applies to grad school. But every blind date goes wrong, and while Ria commiserates with her roommate Tessa and Tessa's totally un-prince-like brother Paolo, Ria discovers that all the things she thought she wanted in a man are far from what she really needs.

BLIND DATE WITH A BOOK BOYFRIEND Hi, I'm Jordyn. I flew from New York to Culver City, CA, to interview for the job of a lifetime. When I walked into The Bookstore, I only wanted a steamy romance or two to help pass the time before my big meeting. I walked out with a gorgeous and sweet cinnamon roll that was more funny and charming than all of my favorite book boyfriends combined, which definitely wasn't the plan. But Mike was irresistible, and the time we spent together exploring Culver City was more fun than I'd had in a long time. But I'm smart enough to know if something feels too good to be true, it probably is. I mean, HEAs are just for fairy tales and romance novels ... right? VEGAS, BABY! Eighteen months ago, Jordyn Robbins was single, unemployed, and living with her parents in NYC. Today, she's happily living in California, seven months pregnant, working long hours at her dream job, planning a giant fairy tale wedding, and frankly overwhelmed. Eighteen months ago, Mike Grayson was single, a workaholic, and living alone in a giant mansion in Culver City. Today, he's happily living in a small four-bedroom house with his very pregnant fiancée, watching her work long hours, planning a giant fairy tale wedding all while refusing to ask for help, and frankly, he's worried. When a dress fitting gone wrong brings Jordyn to her breaking point, can her real-life book boyfriend come to her rescue and give her the HEA of her dreams?35 YEARS Jordyn Robbins is living a real-life fairy tale. The Blind Date

Ten blind dates in four days. Number one was a raging alcoholic, number four still lived with his parents, number six was a gold digger, and number nine was a woman. Number ten, however, was Cedric Barlowe. Saffron agreed to ten blind dates a month in hope that it would get her parents off her back. But of the bunch of weirdos her parents claimed were 'absolutely perfect' for her, the one to stand out-in all the wrong ways-was Cedric. He was self-centred, rude, obnoxious, and a borderline narcissist-the opposite of her type, but she can't stop thinking about him. Perhaps that's down to her seeing a few cracks in the walls he was determined to keep up, or running into each other at every chance encounter, thanks to their parents' meddling, but Saffron finds herself growing fonder of Cedric than she's willing to admit. Even to herself. It appears there's more to Cedric than expensive suits and corporate chit-chat. The more time they spend together, the more she sees the real Cedric. After a hot, electric kiss, they both know they can't deny their feelings for each other any longer. But how are they supposed to give this enemies-to-lovers relationship a fair shot with their parents eagerly watching their every move like it was their favourite reality TV show? With her parents already in love with Cedric, Saffron knows it will have to be serious. The pressure for things to work out would be too much, and they feared it would destroy them before they even began. Agreeing to date in secret while keeping up the pretence of hating each other in the presence of others, they think they'll stand a fair shot. It goes great at first, until it doesn't, and then everything spirals out of control.

Let's just say I'd rather have a Brazilian - and not the hot soccer-player variety. So the fact I've agreed to do a blind-date feature for Pink, the magazine I work for, and write it all up Bridget Jones style means one thing - Pink is in dire straits and this is my best shot at saving my job. Make that my only shot because date number one is with Jack Reese - the son of the publisher of Pink - and he dislikes me as much as I dislike him. Or at least I thought he did.
