I Want To Ask You the First Question because You'Re Not Just a Ride but Also a Teacher I Was Wondering How Would You Teach the Poem Praise Song for the Day That You Rated the President Obama's Inauguration What Might a Student Need To Know in Order To Fully Appreciate and Comprehend the Palm That Is a Great Question and I'M Not At All Surprised I Think I Would Ask My Students First To Think about the Conditions of the Creation of the Poem Why Did It Come into the World Well It Came into the World with Work To Do with a Job To Do and It Came in the World To Be Read Out Perhaps Never To Be Read on Paper

Then I Think I Would Ask Them as I Ask My Students To Do To Literally Look at It and Notice Things To Notice the Shape To Notice the Choices To Notice the Stands A'ok Regularity To Notice that One Line That Breaks Free at the End of the Poem and To See What They Would Have To Say about that I Would Ask for a Show of Hands Who Knows What a Praise Song Is and Then We Would Talk about What Does It Mean for a West African Art Form To Make Its Way into an American Context What Does It Their Form Mean for a African American Art Form To Be at the Center of an American Moment in History Which

And Then We Would Talk about What Does It Mean for a West African Art Form To Make Its Way into an American Context What Does It Their Form Mean for a African American Art Form To Be at the Center of an American Moment in History Which Would I Think Also Become a Way To Think about the Moment That We'Re in in History and Then We Would Just Move through Line by Line and Look at the Images and Remember It's Surprising to Me How Many People because a Lot of People Saw the Inaugural Say to Me I Liked Your Speech and I Think that that's because Most People Think that They Are Not Familiar with Listening to a Poem

So What Does It Mean To Hear this Poem, on ...

And I Think of Course Next of a Writer if We'Re Moving Historically Who's Been Very Important To Meet Gwendolyn Brooks and of Her Poem Kitchenette Building Where She Says We Are Things of Dry Hours and the Involuntary Plan Grade in and Gray Dream Makes a Giddy Sound Not Strong like Rent Feeding a Wife Satisfying a Man but Could a Dream Rise Up through Onion Fumes and Yesterday's Garbage Ripening in the Halls You Know so There's There's Still that Sense of You Know It's Out There but but but What Is It and There We Hope for It

The Way That I Use Dream in My Work Which I Think Is Part of those People Coming before Me and a Whole Lot of Other People Coming before Me Is First of all in the Very Very Literal Sense of You Know What Does It Need To Go into the Literal Dream World Where We'Re Not in Control of Our Juxtaposition We'Re Not in Control of What We Put Next to each Other We Are Surprised Ourselves Our Rational Mind Is Not in Control and Is that I Wondered before I Started Writing a Whole Series of Dream Poems a Space That's Kind of a Free Space of Identity but What I Learned Is that of Course We'Re Never outside of Our Identities We'Re Never Not Who We Are We Are Just Always Capable of Being Who We Are in Far More Expansive Ways and I Think that's What the Strange Juxtaposition of of the Dream World and Also Just the Very Very Peculiar Surprises of Language Has Been Interesting for Me To Explore in the Poems
