First Cajun Music Festival

Jimmy Newman

He Had Already Come To Understand Enough about the Dynamics of Context and Performance from His Own Experiences To Know that Occasion Crowd Would Dance if It Were At All Possible as They Did every Saturday Night and Danced all throughout South Louisiana the Intent of the Concert We Were Producing Was To Enable Cajuns To Appreciate the Value of Their Own Music by Getting Them To Listen to It so He Strongly Suggested Holding the Concert in a Setting Where Dancing Would Not Be Possible that Evening 12 , 000 Cajuns Wiggled in Their Seats in Lafayette Black Impala See'em and Listened to the Sounds That They Had Only Heard Before while Dancing

There Are Many Examples That Illustrate due His Understanding of Culture as Process Rather than Product for Years He Tried To Convince Festival Organizers To Allow Him To Come with His Current Band as He Performed in Dance Halls every Saturday Night He Eventually Won a Partial Victory Coming with Most of His Dance Band but He Was Never Allowed To Bring Along His Steel Guitar to the Smithsonian Festival of American Folklife the Argument Was that the Steel Guitar Was Too Modern and Inappropriate and Inauthentic Addition to Traditional Instrumentation That's a Tradition from Their Perspective Never Mind the Fact That Do a Ba File Long Recognized as a Pillar of Cultural Preservation in America Chose To Perform Weekly with a Steel Guitar in His Band

Recently He Went On To Say that He Didn't Have To Turn Around To Know that What He Just Said and Made some People Backstage Very Nervous because He Was There To Represent Cultural Conservation but for Him Cultural Conservation Did Not Mean Preserving Things for Him Cultural Conservation Meant Preserving the Life of the Culture the Process and if He Was Successful Then the Culture Was Going To Be Alive and Well and Continue To Grow and Evolve in Its Own Terms and if this Effort Was Successful in His Native Louisiana than 50 or So Years from Now some Young Musicians Were GonNa Need some Songs That Were Fifty or So Years Old To Play They Saw the Experience from the First Bar Was Virtually Repeated When They Left Again I Was Able To Convince the Captain that this Was Just a Demonstration Run After All and Then We Could Head Back to the Museum Now He Agreed and Led His Contingent Back but Not without Interacting with Everyone They Passed along the Way When They Were Safely Back into the Museum They Sang Their Song Again Danced a Bit More and Then Serve and Ate the Gumbo with all Who Were There According to Their Tradition to the Relief of Organizers no One Had Been Lost or Hurt Are Too Offended but It Was Definitely More Mardi Gras than They Had Anticipated It Was Probably Less than the Participants Would Happily Have Done if Given More Rain the Group Had Extracted Something like a Mardi Gras Feeling out of this Artificial

It Was Probably Less than the Participants Would Happily Have Done if Given More Rain the Group Had Extracted Something like a Mardi Gras Feeling out of this Artificial Experience by Insisting on Going Out on Their Own Terms and Temporarily Ignoring Efforts To Deter Them So Where Does this Leave Us all Sorts of Highly Technical Studies Have Derived from Study Academic Study of Folklore and in My Experience I Found that the Possibilities of Focusing Especially on Performance and Contextual Theory in Folk Arts Programming Public Sector That Didn't Need To Be Conflictual Their Cultural Imperatives in each Performance of Traditional Culture Including Setting Time Constant Negotiation Performers
