A grant is a monetary award given by a Federal Agency to a nonprofit organization, business, or government entity. How much grant money is available through the Federal Government?

What is the Grant Lifecycle? The Federal grant lifecycle process typically has three phases: • Pre-award phase: announcement of funding opportunity, receipt of applications; and review of applications

Determine if there is Federal funding to support what you want to do

Develop a strategic plan to create a winning grant proposal • Identify specific programs and deadlines • Identify key Federal people to contact • Visit the Federal Agency to meet with the key people to learn more

Develop the grant proposal • Create a calendar of milestones, deliverables and key dates from conceptualization to delivery of the grant proposal that adheres to the Agency grants guidelines If you have not done so, register in Grants Gov. Most submissions are electronic

Produce a complete first draft of the proposal • This should include all the content requirements of the grant

Do a Gold and White Glove review of the proposal Step 10: Check to ensure that your proposal is complete, compliant, and persuasive

Step 15: Learn from the grants application process and become better at submitting competitive grant proposals
