OD interventions are specific actions taken to implement specific changes.

DEVELOPMENT Training and development are listed first because they focus on the individual, and the other interventions often include some form of training. Training is the process of developing skills, behaviors, and attitudes to be used on the job.

SENSITIVITY Sensitivity training takes place in a group of 10 to 15 people. The training sessions have no agenda. People learn about how their behavior affects others and how others' behavior affects theirs.

TEAM BUILDING Team building is an OD intervention designed to help work groups increase structural and team dynamics and performance.

CONSULTATION Process consultation is often part of team building, but it is commonly used as a separate, more narrowly focused intervention. Process consultation is an OD intervention designed to improve team dynamics.

FORCEFIELD Forcefield analysis is an OD intervention that diagrams the current level of performance, the forces hindering change, and the forces driving toward change. The process is to list the hindering and driving forces to make the desired change.

INTERVENTION Large-group intervention is an OD technique that brings together participants from all parts of the organization, and often key outside stakeholders, to solve problems or take advantage of opportunities

DIFFERENCE A major difference between large-group interventions and the other OD interventions is the focus on functional diversity and inclusion of key stakeholders.

WORK DESIGN Work design refers to organizational structure. Work can be designed as an individual job, as a job for a group to perform, or by departmentalization

FEEDBACK Direct feedback is an OD intervention in which the change agent makes a direct recommendation for change. In certain situations, the most efficient intervention is to have a change agent make a direct recommendation for a specific change.

CHANGES First, organization development involves attempts to plan organization changes, which excludes spontaneous, haphazard initiatives.

EFFECTIVENESS Second, the specific intention of organization development is to improve organization effectiveness

IMPROVEMENT Third, the planned improvement must be based on knowledge of the behavioral sciences such as organizational behavior, psychology, sociology, cultural anthropology, and related fields of study.

STRUCTURAL The most comprehensive type of organization change involves a major reorientation or reorganization - usually referred to as a structural change or a system-wide rearrangement of task division and authority and reporting relationships.

Organizational development is based on a systematic change process and focuses on managing the culture of the organization.

Future changes include: • Demographic changes

Success will mean different things for different organisations, but it is likely to include: • delivering high quality services

Organisational Development is a planned, systematic approach to improving organisational effectiveness.

The Organisational Development Toolkit has been developed to support organisations within the Queensland community services sector to prepare for

Tool A - Strategic Challenge Questions

Tool C- Strategy Development & Strategy Implementation: Guides organisations to use the information gathered in Tool B and develop an action plan based on an assessment of urgency and importance.

Outcomes: • Greater shared understanding of challenges and opportunities facing the organisation. • Better strategy design and implementation. • Better prioritisation of strategies and the use of organisational resources. • Improved outcomes and performance for all stakeholders including clients, staff, funders and the broader community

ORG DEVELOPMENT

DIAGNOSIS The first step in organizational development is to diagnose the problem(s).

CHANGE AGENT A change agent is the person responsible for the OD program. The change agent can use a variety of methods to diagnose problems.

Some methods are reviewing records, observing, interviewing individuals and work groups, holding meetings, and/or using questionnaires.

TECHNIQUES There are five OD techniques: training and development, performance appraisal, survey feedback, force field analysis, and team building.

Training is the process of developing the necessary skills to perform the present job.
