Garden Trends for 2024 | #GoodGrowing - Garden Trends for 2024 | #GoodGrowing by University of Illinois Extension Horticulture 149 views 3 days ago 58 minutes - This week on the Good, Growing podcast we chat with horticulture educator Emily Swihart about garden, trends to be on the ... Hey Ken and Emily!

It's time to talk about the "art" side of horticulture. What are our references? Is it just our opinion? Has Emily noticed any over-arching garden trends? - Yes. The trends of ecology and biodiversity in the home landscape and then fun and exciting new plants hitting the market.

The trend to accept insects as a good thing.

The trend of eco-optimism.

The trend of native plants.

The trend of densely planted landscape beds.

Chris attempts to start a trend.

The trend of improving our urban forests and putting a stop to the maple trend.

The trend of environmental justice.

The trend of the color of the year – chartreuse.

The trend of the gothic garden (dark colors).

The trend of cemeteries as a park-like space for the public to gather.

The trend of nighttime gardens. Night-flowering plants and night lighting.

The trends we want to let go.

Thank yous and coming up next week.
