 To interest, engage and challenge the learners
 To identify the present level of understanding
 1. Never limit your questions to low level questions.
 Arrange your questions and pose them in a logical sequence (specific to general, lower level to higher level, a sequence related to content)
 Reconstruct your questions if they seem to be too hard to understand for the students.
 Address the questions to the whole class first then pick a student to answer.
 Deliver your questions in such a way that is encouraging and motivating.
 Use questions not just to assess students especially those who are only listening. You can utilize questioning to check if students are still on earth .
