Intro

Earth is constantly accreting extraterrestrial material. Total mass of extraterrestrial objects that strike the Earth is called meteorite flux. // This flux is at present around  $10^7$  to

Later (Early Archean) Impacts: • Early record of impact on the Earth is limited and circumstantial •

First "real" rock record of impact events about 400 to 500 million years after end of the LHB Distal ejecta layers spherule layers in the -3.4 Ga Barberton Greenstone Belt, South Africa

Today: The importance of impact cratering on terrestrial planets is obvious from the abundance of craters on their surfaces In the 1970s: Only about 50 impact craters recognized on Earth; studies of impact craters and shock metamorphism mostly restricted to few mineralogists, petrologists and cosmochemists who worked on lunar rocks; impact cratering not part of any geology curriculum
