What is differential analysis? Differential revenues and costs represent the difference in revenues and costs between alternative courses of action. Differential revenues and costs are also called incremental revenues and

What is the format used to perform differential analysis: The following format is for Phillips Accountancy's decision whether to keep or drop unprofitable customers.

What is a make-or-buy decision? A company is deciding whether to make a product internally or buy the product from an outside firm. Buying the product from an outside firm is called outsourcing. Differential analysis can be used to analyze make-or-buy decisions.

How is differential analysis used for make-or-buy decisions? First calculate the costs associated with making the product internally (Alternative 1) or buying the product from another source (Alternative 2). Then calculate the differential amounts between the two alternatives. Lastly, choose the alternative with the lowest cost.

Example of make-or-buy differential analysis for best Boards, Inc.

What is a product line decision? A product line is a group of related products. As products near the end of their life cycles, managers must decide whether to keep or drop the product lines. Companies must continually assess whether to discontinue current product lines

How is differential analysis used for product line decisions? Assume Barbeque Company has three product lines, gas barbecues, charcoal barbecues, and barbecue accessories.
