

Victorian And Edwardian Fashion A Photographic Survey

#Victorian fashion history #Edwardian era clothing #Historical fashion photography #19th century fashion trends #Early 20th century style evolution

Explore the exquisite world of Victorian and Edwardian fashion through a comprehensive photographic survey. Delve into the intricate details, iconic silhouettes, and societal influences that shaped clothing from the late 19th to early 20th centuries, offering a visual journey through a pivotal period of style history.

Each publication is designed to enhance learning and encourage critical thinking.

The authenticity of our documents is always ensured.

Each file is checked to be truly original.

This way, users can feel confident in using it.

Please make the most of this document for your needs.

We will continue to share more useful resources.

Thank you for choosing our service.

This document is widely searched in online digital libraries.

You are privileged to discover it on our website.

We deliver the complete version Victorian Edwardian Fashion Photographic Survey to you for free.

Victorian And Edwardian Fashion A Photographic Survey

My Victorian/Witchy/Dark Academia Wardrobe | Fighting Fast Fashion - My Victorian/Witchy/Dark Academia Wardrobe | Fighting Fast Fashion by Bernadette Banner 1,105,767 views 3 years ago 18 minutes - Music: All music from epidemicsound.com unless otherwise noted. 'Impressions of You', Gavin Luke 'Night Walk', Gavin Luke ...

Victorian vs Edwardian | which is which? - Victorian vs Edwardian | which is which? by Cat's Costumery 42,491 views 3 years ago 11 minutes, 13 seconds - Hello everyone and welcome to a new video! I've been meaning to do this for a little while. We had to do some decade based ...

Intro

The 1830s

The 1850s

The 1870s

The 1880s

The 1900s

The book

Exposing Victorian Influencers Who 'Facetuned' Their Photos. (Photo Manipulation was EVERYWHERE) Exposing Victorian Influencers Who 'Facetuned' Their Photos. (Photo Manipulation was EVERYWHERE) by Bernadette Banner 865,442 views 2 years ago 22 minutes - Go to <https://nordvpn.com/bernadette> or use code bernadette to get a 2-year plan plus a bonus gift with a huge discount. Thanks to ...

How the Victorians Faked Tiny Waists (without fainting!) - How the Victorians Faked Tiny Waists (without fainting!) by Bernadette Banner 1,564,857 views 10 months ago 18 minutes - This channel is made possible through the generous support of Patreon members. On behalf of myself and the team: thank you!

Intro

Reduction

Augmentation

Illusion

Image Manipulation

Fashion Through History: Episode 1 – Victorians - Fashion Through History: Episode 1 – Victorians by English Heritage 64,347 views 1 year ago 10 minutes, 59 seconds - Join Fashion, Historian

Serena Dyer as she travels to Osborne to meet English Heritage Curator Sam Stones. The pair unveil three ...

1830s CHECKED SILK DRESS

1850s ORGANDY DRESS

1870s MOURNING DRESS

1900s-1910s Incredible Edwardian England in Colour - 1900s-1910s Incredible Edwardian England in Colour by Bright Style 468,508 views 10 months ago 10 minutes, 12 seconds - A step back in time to the elegant Edwardian Era,. The good gold days. If you like this video, you could support my technical work, ...

24 pictures of the Typical Fashion Style of Edwardian Era - 24 pictures of the Typical Fashion Style of Edwardian Era by Faramel 10,946 views 3 years ago 2 minutes, 20 seconds - The upper classes embraced leisure sports, which resulted in rapid developments in fashion,, as more mobile and flexible clothing, ...

America in the 1910's - 1920's / 55 Rare Impressive Photos in Color - America in the 1910's - 1920's / 55 Rare Impressive Photos in Color by Bright Style 680,562 views 7 months ago 10 minutes, 14 seconds - Time Travel Back to America in the 1910s-1920s Like You've Never Seen Before. Thanks for your help on the project. I really ...

Unseen Color Footage of England 1918 | Remastered - Unseen Color Footage of England 1918 | Remastered by Vivid History 347,482 views 1 year ago 9 minutes, 30 seconds - Remastered footage originally from 1918 taken in England. Several scenes were recorded in London. Among other famous ...

if an 1890 woman and a 2021 woman had a conversation - if an 1890 woman and a 2021 woman had a conversation by Karolina {ebrowska 1,378,888 views 2 years ago 2 minutes, 6 seconds - these two will not be besties become a member: <https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCNwZIGnHkzy6KpH-PQtsrZQ/join>

1890's-1900's Spectacular Paris in Color /59 Incredible Rare Photos - 1890's-1900's Spectacular Paris in Color /59 Incredible Rare Photos by Bright Style 589,771 views 1 year ago 8 minutes, 8 seconds - Time travel back to Amazing Paris one of the most beautiful city in the world in la belle époque (1890-1910) like you have never ...

100 Dresses ~ One For Every Year In The 1800s | Cultured Elegance - 100 Dresses ~ One For Every Year In The 1800s | Cultured Elegance by Cultured Elegance With Faith 604,786 views 11 months ago 7 minutes, 3 seconds - 100 Dresses ~ One For Every Year In The 1800s | Cultured Elegance In this video, we will discuss an overview of 19th century ...

Children's Early 19th Century Morning Routine - Children's Early 19th Century Morning Routine by Early American 3,239,823 views 3 years ago 7 minutes, 56 seconds - It's a chilly December morning in 1820. Benjamin Stephenson's daughters Julia & Elvira told me that they wanted to play the game ...

1912 Titanic Before and After Disaster in Color/79 Rare Photos of RMS Titanic, Carpathia and Olympic - 1912 Titanic Before and After Disaster in Color/79 Rare Photos of RMS Titanic, Carpathia and Olympic by Bright Style 195,138 views 10 months ago 13 minutes, 59 seconds - This video contains genuine photos, of the RMS Titanic, Carpathia and Olympic , before and after disaster... only 10 minutes before ...

Fashion Through History: Episode 2 – Georgians - Fashion Through History: Episode 2 – Georgians by English Heritage 34,553 views 1 year ago 12 minutes, 23 seconds - Join Fashion, Historian Serena Dyer as she travels to Kenwood to meet English Heritage Curator Louise Cooling. The pair unveil ...

Myths About The Victorian Era, Debunked - Myths About The Victorian Era, Debunked by Weird History 463,603 views 1 year ago 13 minutes, 46 seconds - The Victorian era, may be heavily represented in pop culture, through stately period dramas, rollicking novels, and gritty television ... Intro

WEIRD HISTORY

WHAT WAS THE VICTORIAN ERA?

MYTH: QUEEN VICTORIA WAS COLD AND HUMORLESS

MYTH: PARENTS DIDN'T CARE FOR THEIR CHILDREN

MYTH: THERE WAS NO DIVERSITY

MYTH: OPIUM DENS WERE EPIDEMIC

MYTH: PRINCE ALBERT HAD A PRINCE ALBERT

MYTH: WOMEN STAYED AT HOME

MYTH: THEY HAD NO SENSE OF HUMOR

MYTH: MOURNERS COLLECTED THEIR TEARS IN GLASS BOTTLES

MYTH: PEOPLE WERE SO REPRESSED, THEY KEPT PIANO LEGS COVERED

1920's Charming Paris / 54 Extremely Rare Photos Colorized - 1920's Charming Paris / 54 Extremely Rare Photos Colorized by Bright Style 68,998 views 6 months ago 10 minutes, 9 seconds - Time Travel back in the City of Love during of the Roaring Twenties like you have never seen it before.

Thanks for your help on the ...

Mysteries in my Victorian Family Photos: How to Date Fashion History - Mysteries in my Victorian Family Photos: How to Date Fashion History by Nicole Rudolph 59,187 views 1 year ago 30 minutes - If you've inherited a stack of family photographs, or built up your own from antique stores, you'll have wondered what untold ...

Small town Big fashion

Cameras

Silhouettes

Carter family 1860-1890

Ruch family 1895-1905

Edwardian Summer outfit; Keeping cool in 1906 = Edwardian Summer outfit; Keeping cool in 1906 = by The Sewlo Artist 13,117,831 views 1 year ago 43 seconds – play Short

What Was The Edwardian Fashion ? 1890-1915 - What Was The Edwardian Fashion ? 1890-1915 by One Fashion Question 1,568 views 3 months ago 16 minutes - After the dark fabrics, heavy skirts and bustles of the Victorian era, Edwardian fashion, turned to lighter, blousier styles that aimed ...
Intro

The Edwardian Era

Blouses

Hat

Tea Gown

Lacy Edwardian Blouses are...COMPLICATED. =Lacy Edwardian Blouses are...COMPLICATED. =C by Bernadette Banner 2,315,841 views 1 year ago 28 minutes - Soundtrack: "Catalonia", Aleksey Chistilin. Artist "And We Walk After", Trevor Kowalski. Epidemicsound "Memories of Her", David ...
Sleeve

Insert Lace Configuration

Pattern Fabric Pieces

Getting Dressed in the Victorian Era: 1895 Walking Suit - Getting Dressed in the Victorian Era: 1895 Walking Suit by The Sewlo Artist 99,995 views 2 years ago 6 minutes, 41 seconds - Have you ever wondered what Victorian, women wore, and how they got dressed? Come with me and get ready with me for a walk ...

Stockings and Shoes

Putting on Your Shoes

Ruffled Corset Cover

Petticoats

Sleeve Supports

Skirt Skirts

Put on a Hat and Gloves

Achieving That Classic Edwardian Shape: Reconstructing a 1902 Bust Bodice - Achieving That Classic Edwardian Shape: Reconstructing a 1902 Bust Bodice by Bernadette Banner 2,624,751 views 3 years ago 27 minutes - Footage taken of the original Symington bust bodice and during the study appointment used with permission from Leicestershire ...

cutting 1 inch strips plus seam allowance for the center front panel pinning the cotton backing to the narrow center front

add the feather bone in before closing with channels

add the bones

Great Britain in the 1890's - 1900's Victorian Era / 55 Extremely Rare Exciting Photos Colorized - Great Britain in the 1890's - 1900's Victorian Era / 55 Extremely Rare Exciting Photos Colorized by Bright Style 275,561 views 8 months ago 9 minutes, 19 seconds - Get a taste of life in Victorian, Britain and Ireland like you have never seen before with our immersive tour. The Victorian era, in ...
Queen Victoria and family at Balmoral, 1887.

Victorian Women at horse races, 1899

Greater Manchester Police, 1901

Limerick Railway Station, Ireland 1901

Man Dressed in Drag in the Victorian Era

Student Group, Trinity College, Dublin, 1900
Busy day, Oxford Street, 1896, London
Ludgate Circus traffic scene as seen from Fleet Street, London, 1896
Victorian Family Portrait Liverpool 1890s
Edwardian Fashion - Edwardian Fashion by Darling Videos 59,912 views 4 years ago 26 minutes - Hello everyone!! I might not be a History Expert but I wanted to make a little something to help give some inspiration to those ...
Victorian Era Couple Live Like It's The 19th Century | Extraordinary People | New York Post - Victorian Era Couple Live Like It's The 19th Century | Extraordinary People | New York Post by New York Post 10,297,537 views 5 years ago 3 minutes, 28 seconds - On this episode of Extraordinary People, a quirky couple is obsessed with the Victorian era,. Sarah and Gabriel Chrisman wear ...
19th Century Fashion - How To Tell Different Decades Apart? - 19th Century Fashion - How To Tell Different Decades Apart? by Karolina {ebrowska 1,028,777 views 6 years ago 13 minutes, 30 seconds - first person to count all the words I mispronounced gets 10 points for their house. also, is it just me or do I sound like the ...
Intro
The 1790s
The 1830s
1890-1900's Amazing Victorian England in Colour / 59 Impressive Rare Photos - 1890-1900's Amazing Victorian England in Colour / 59 Impressive Rare Photos by Bright Style 151,272 views 9 months ago 10 minutes, 14 seconds - Time travel back in beautiful Victorian, England 130 years ago like you've never seen. The Victorian, period in Britain was one of ...
Dressing in Edwardian Clothing: Undergarments and Layers of 1907 - Dressing in Edwardian Clothing: Undergarments and Layers of 1907 by Nicole Rudolph 68,184 views 3 years ago 6 minutes, 6 seconds - I thought you'd all enjoy a brief look at the layers that commonly went into an ensemble from 1907 as I'm working on a long-form ...
Intro
Combinations
S-Bend Corset
Ventilated Hip Pad
Corset Cover
Petticoat
Shirt Waist
Four-Gored Princess Skirt
1907 "Tailored" Jacket
Ok but how did the Edwardians WASH these dresses? - Ok but how did the Edwardians WASH these dresses? by Bernadette Banner 2,373,860 views 1 year ago 37 minutes - Notes: [1] A Competent Committee of Home-makers and Physicians, ed. Home and Health; a Household Manual Containing Two ...
Stain Removal
Soaking Stage
Bluing
Starching
Drying Process
Ironing
Search filters
Keyboard shortcuts
Playback
General
Subtitles and closed captions
Spherical videos

The Story of Lancashire Cotton

Using photographs, most of them for the first time, Lancashire author Ron Freethy has created a superb record of the cotton industry and its importance to the county.

The Lancashire Cotton Industry

Lancashire was once the Cotton Capital of the world. Raw cotton came in to Liverpool docks and was sold on the Exchange. In the beginning, it was then transported to cottages all over the county where whole families, including the children, would clean, card, spin and weave it. The finished cloth was then sold on the Manchester Exchange. With the coming of the Industrial Revolution new machines saw the work transferred from home to factory. It was said that Lancashire could produce enough cotton before breakfast to supply the UK market, with the remainder of the day's supply going overseas. Read the first hand accounts from local people, and look at the remarkable collection of contemporary photographs.

Memories of the Lancashire Cotton Mills

In Lancashire the cotton mill dominates many a skyline, even today. Stott & Sons is a unique and fascinating study of one of the most crucial architects' practices working in this field. Over 150 illustrations and gazetteer. spinning town in Britain and architects from Oldham came to dominate the business of designing cotton spinning mills in Lancashire. This book traces the history of Stott & Sons, who were one of the oldest and most prominent firms in the business. Stott, senior, set up an office in Oldham and he was later joined in partnership by two of his sons. They were also involved in the promotion of cotton spinning companies and, as a general architectural practice, designed other buildings including houses, schools and a watch factory. The records of the firm have not survived, but the author has used a variety of sources ranging from Building Regulation records to newspapers and trade journals. Most importantly he has looked at the mills themselves in the belief that industrial archaeology has a major contribution to make in understanding the history of the Lancashire cotton industry.

Stott & Sons

Located on the eastern edge of the Lancashire plain on the banks of the River Chor, at the center of a rich agricultural area, Chorley was a market town from medieval times. This beautifully presented book depicts the growth and prosperity which arose with the Industrial Revolution, through juxtaposing images of streets, buildings, and people. The photographs feature aspects of industry such as cotton weaving and spinning; coal mining and quarrying; and canal and railway links. Images showing the physical development are accompanied by changes in costume and custom, transport and trading, sport and entertainment. Informative captions will help the reader understand how all this contributed to the rich history of Chorley.

Lancashire in the 20's and 30's

Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts (1) We have not used OCR(Optical Character Recognition), as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos. (2) In books where there are images such as portraits, maps, sketches etc We have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images, so they represent accurately the original artefact. Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts, we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy.

Edenfield Through Time

The author's unique record of the mills of Preston will enthrall those who worked in the mills and is a rich source of information for anyone interested in cotton mills and steam power. This invaluable book is the product of the author's passionate interest in the mills which forested Preston's skyline until the latter half of the last century. Colin Dickinson has always been fascinated by the mills, and more specifically the engines which powered them. Without these astonishing machines, mass production of cotton would not have been possible. Many years of meticulous research, supported by visits to mills and interviews with mill workers, has resulted in a book which no-one else could have written in this way. Mill after mill was demolished when King Cotton died, but the author had the foresight to photograph large numbers of them before they disappeared from view. His images stand as a permanent record of an industry and way of life that survive only in the memories of the thousands of Preston folk who worked in the mills. Decade by decade this book charts the role of steam power in the great mills of Preston during the century-and-a-half of their operation. In chronological order it lists every cotton factory to appear on the scene, presenting building dates, site layouts, constructional details, spindleage, loomage, ownerships and final closure dates. Cotton Mills of Preston: The Power Behind the Thread will enthrall those who worked in the mills and is a rich source of information for anyone interested in cotton mills and steam power.

Chorley and District

The industrial town of Burnley developed around coalmining and cotton weaving and spinning. In this absorbing new book local author Jack Nadin has gathered together ninety pairs of images to record the decline of these old industries and contrast the changing face of the town during the last 100 years; the old streets and buildings, shops and businesses, houses and public buildings, whilst recalling local people who once lived and worked in the town. Burnley Then & Now is sure to bring back nostalgic memories of yesteryear for all who know and love this part of Lancashire.

Sabden Past and Present

"A Victorian Society" is a book about early photography and photographers, told against the backdrop of life in what was to become the most productive cotton spinning town in the world. In 1867, when photography was still in its infancy, a group of photographers from Oldham and District met at the Hare and Hounds Inn, Yorkshire Street, and founded the Oldham Photographic Society and some of these men would provide the early photographic studios in the town. The photographic portrait had been accessible only to the wealthy but now it was beginning to be affordable by all but the poorest in society. One evening each week, the early photographers of Oldham met to share knowledge and to collect photographs in their album, which has mostly lain unseen in the society's archives for over 100 years. "A Victorian Society" has more than 300 black and white photographs and illustrations, many of which are published here for the first time. The book first traces the early days of photography through the lives of the pioneers, in France and Britain, whose work led to the creation of the permanent photographic image, paving the way for all professional and amateur photography. After the Lancashire cotton famine, the late 1860s marked the beginning of the most exciting period of Oldham's history. The author examines the rise of the town to become one of the most important cotton spinning and textile engineering towns in the world and follows its progress through phenomenal growth to eventual decline. The Victorian age was the "Age of Invention" and the Oldham Photographic Society reflects that through its early members, many of whom rose to prominence in the world of photography, commerce and manufacturing, some of their businesses achieving national and international importance. Using genealogy sources and historic publications, the author researched the lives of many of the society's Victorian members and brings them together in a social group not studied before. Their stories give a real insight into their origins, successes, rise to fortune, failures and personal tragedies. The book concludes with a guide on how to date old photographs.

The Lancashire Cotton Industry, a Study in Economic Development

Chadderton Mill, built 1884-85, was one of the many cotton spinning mills in Oldham, Lancashire. When it closed in 2000 it was one of the last mills in Oldham to be used by the textile industry, latterly for winding and doubling. Still standing, it is listed grade 2 because it is considered to be a good example of a spinning mill of its period. This well illustrated book places the mill in the context of the Lancashire cotton industry, looking at the origins and financing of the mill together with subsequent changes in ownership. The original construction, layout of machinery and workforce of the mill are described as are later extensions including change of use in the 1930s. Many of the illustrations were taken by the author before the mill closed in 2000.

Cotton

Preston was no ordinary town during the nineteenth century. While king cotton reigned supreme throughout Lancashire, the underlying ills associated with this industry were very often highlighted particularly starkly there. This book presents an indictment of the industrial system that caused such suffering to Preston's cotton 'martyrs'.

Cotton Mills of Preston

The Photographic History of the Civil War was first published in 1911 to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the great conflict. These volumes were dedicated to the American People in tribute to the courage and the valor with which they met one of the greatest crises that a nation has ever known. A crisis that changed the course of civilization. Contained within are thousands of photographs as well as the rise of photographic journalism during a conflict. This series offers a unique record of one of the greatest conflicts in the history of mankind. Included in this series are maps to mark the battles and line-art decorations that give the reader an authentic feel of the era. The photographs in this series can be viewed as art, history or more importantly journalism. Covering every aspect of war- from the frontline to everyday life- these volumes are a testament to the conflict and the country which emerged from it. The Navies presents a photographic record of the Federal Navy and Confederate Navy. It documents the birth of the Ironclads and the most famous American Naval Battles of the time. It offers Naval Chronology from 1861-1863.

Burnley Then & Now

Approximately 150 detailed photographs from the Francis Frith Collection of the county spanning over 100 years. With extended captions and full introduction. Suitable for tourists, local historians and general readers. Includes a voucher for a free mounted print of any photograph shown in the book.

Pits and Looms

True stories of love, laughter and loss from inside Lancashire's cotton mills. With tales from reluctant Audrey and mischievous Maureen to high-spirited Doris and dedicated Marjorie, The Mill Girls is an evocative story of hardship and friendship when cotton was still king. Through the eyes of four northern mill girls, we are offered a fascinating glimpse into the lives of ordinary women who rallied together, nattered over the beamers and, despite the hard working conditions, weaved, packed and laughed to keep the cotton mills spinning. The Mill Girls is a moving story of an era long gone and provides a captivating insight into a lost way of life.

A Victorian Society

The rise of the mills is about to change everything . . . If you love Catherine Cookson and Val Wood, you will love this brand new series set in the mill town of Blackburn, Lancashire.

'Brimming with drama, heartbreak, love, friendship and the powerful bonds of family' Lancashire Post
'Engrossing tale of hardship, struggles, love and family' Kitty Neale 'Vividly drawn characters . . . gritty and heartfelt . . . a must-read' Evie Grace
Lancashire, 1826 When Jennet and Titus Eastwood are forced to move from their idyllic cottage into the centre of Blackburn to find work in the cotton mills, their lives are changed in ways they could never have imagined and their new home on Paradise Lane is anything but . . . Then Titus is arrested and sent to prison for attending a Reform meeting. Jennet is left to fend for herself and things go from bad to worse as she finds herself pregnant and alone - with another man's child . . .
Pre-order the brand new novel in this heart-warming and uplifting saga series, A FAMILY SECRET

Chadderton Mill

This fascinating selection of photographs traces some of the many ways in which Wigan and the surrounding areas have changed over the last century.

The Lancashire Cotton Famine Around Leigh

Catherine Rothwell presents finely-detailed period photographs of the locality from the world-famous Francis Frith archive. A full introduction is included, as well as extended captions to the pictures.

Preston Cotton Martyrs

"Roger Fenton (1819-1869) was England's most celebrated photographer during the 1850s, the young medium's most glorious moment. After studying law and painting, Fenton took up the camera in 1851 and immediately began to produce highly original images. During a decade of work he mastered every photographic genre he attempted: architectural photography, landscape, portraiture, still life, reportage, and tableau vivant." "This volume presents ninety of Fenton's finest photographs, exactly reproduced. Six leading scholars have contributed nine illustrated essays that address every aspect of Fenton's career, as well as a comprehensive, documented chronology."--BOOK JACKET.

A Photographic History of The Civil War

This fascinating selection of photographs traces some of the many ways in which Stretford & Old Trafford have changed and developed over the last century.

Lancashire

This is the first full-length study of the effect of the American Civil War on Britain's raw cotton trade and on the Liverpool cotton market. It includes an analysis of primary sources never used by historians. Before the civil war, America supplied 80 per cent of Britain's cotton. In August 1861, this fell to almost zero, where it remained for four years. Despite increased supplies from elsewhere, Britain's largest industry received only 36 per cent of the raw material it needed from 1862-64. This book establishes the facts of Britain's raw cotton supply during the war: how much there was of it, in absolute terms and related to the demand, where it came from and why, how much it cost, and what effect the reduced supply had on Britain's cotton manufacture. It includes an enquiry into the causes of the Lancashire cotton famine, which contradicts the historical consensus on the subject. Examining the impact of the civil war on Liverpool and its raw cotton market, this thought-provoking book demonstrates how reckless speculation infested and distorted the market, and lays bare the shadowy world of the Liverpool cotton brokers, who profited hugely from the war while the rest of Lancashire starved.

The Silent Mills

A unique exploration of the history of the bicycle in cinema, from Hollywood blockbusters and slapstick comedies to documentaries, realist dramas, and experimental films. Cycling and Cinema explores the history of the bicycle in cinema from the late nineteenth century through to the present day. In this new book from Goldsmiths Press, Bruce Bennett examines a wide variety of films from around the world, ranging from Hollywood blockbusters and slapstick comedies to documentaries, realist dramas, and experimental films, to consider the complex, shifting cultural significance of the bicycle. The bicycle is an everyday technology, but in examining the ways in which bicycles are used in films, Bennett reveals the rich social and cultural importance of this apparently unremarkable machine. The cinematic bicycles discussed in this book have various functions. They are the source of absurd comedy in silent films, and the vehicles that allow their owners to work in sports films and social realist cinema. They are a means of independence and escape for children in melodramas and kids' films, and the tools that offer political agency and freedom to women, as depicted in films from around the world. In recounting the cinematic history of the bicycle, Bennett reminds us that this machine is not just a practical means of transport or a child's toy, but the vehicle for a wide range of meanings concerning individual identity, social class, nationhood and belonging, family, gender, and sexuality and pleasure. As this book shows, two hundred years on from its invention, the bicycle is a revolutionary technology that retains the power to transform the world.

The Mill Girls

This is the first of three volumes of photographs with brief notes. The volumes have been divided roughly into geographic order, this first book starting at Woodbridge Mill in the north, and working down as far as the shops and the school, all of which fell within Littleton Panell during the 19th Century. Also included in this volume are many photographs of village celebrations; fetes, carnivals, and outings, and school photographs dating from the late 19th Century, some from Little Cheverell and a few from Market Lavington.

The Cotton Spinner

This book is part of the Images of England series, which uses old photographs and archived images to show the history of various local areas in England, through their streets, shops, pubs, and people.

The Cotton Mills of Oldham

This fascinating selection of photographs traces some of the many ways in which Hyde has changed and developed over the last century.

In & Around Wigan Through Time

Once a major cotton spinning town, there were at one time over twenty mills in Chorley. The first steam-powered cotton mills and the Lancaster Canal to the east of the town were built in the late 1790s and the railway was connected to Chorley from Bolton in 1841. The Royal Ordnance Factory was established in 1939 and produced ammunition until winding down in 2002. Since then the biggest housing development in Lancashire has been taking place on the site: the building of a complete new village called Buckshaw. Despite the loss of some heritage, Chorley still has three mills in use locally, as well as Astley Hall and Park, the new Yarrow Valley Country Park and Healey Nab. In this book a wonderful collection of old photographs are compared and contrasted with modern equivalents, unveiling amazing changes and unexpected similarities.

Lancashire Villages

The Lancashire Cotton famine\

VICTORIANS AND EDWARDIANS ABROAD

Victorians and Edwardians abroad: the beginning of the modern holiday reveals a story never told before: the early years of one of Britain's leading modern travel agencies, the Polytechnic Touring Association (PTA). Created in 1888 within Britain's first Polytechnic, the PTA was an emblem of the era. It served a growing mass of middle-class and lower middle-class consumers, who found for the first time that they had the time and money to take extended holidays, often abroad. This book explains the creation of the Polytechnic and the PTA, charting the expansion of the travel agency into continental Europe and beyond. Victorians and Edwardians abroad uncovers the recollections of those who went on Poly holidays before 1914: how they experienced the journeys, what they did when they reached their destinations and what they thought holidays should be about. For all the serious strictures from their social betters about the educational and improving aspects of travel, PTA holiday makers enjoyed themselves: liberating pork pies from train carriages, annoying foreign policemen and even beating the German Emperor to the last horses in town. Letters, articles and diaries of Poly holidays reveal a penchant for fun, even naughtiness, not often associated with the Victorians and Edwardians. Also included are a selection of postcards, photographs and promotional items from the PTA archives. Victorians and Edwardians abroad is a fascinating glimpse into holidays as they were, just over a hundred years ago.

Victorians & Edwardians Abroad

Victorians and Edwardians abroad: the beginning of the modern holiday reveals a story never told before: the early years of one of Britain's leading modern travel agencies, the Polytechnic Touring Association (PTA). Created in 1888 within Britain's first Polytechnic, the PTA was an emblem of the era. It served a growing mass of middle-class and lower middle-class consumers, who found for the first time that they had the time and money to take extended holidays, often abroad. This book explains the creation of the Polytechnic and the PTA, charting the expansion of the travel agency into continental Europe and beyond. Victorians and Edwardians abroad uncovers the recollections of those who went on Poly holidays before 1914: how they experienced the journeys, what they did when they reached their destinations and what they thought holidays should be about. For all the serious strictures from their social betters about the educational and improving aspects of travel, PTA holiday makers enjoyed themselves: liberating pork pies from train carriages, annoying foreign policemen and even beating the German Emperor to the last horses in town. Letters, articles and diaries of Poly holidays reveal a penchant for fun, even naughtiness, not often associated with the Victorians and Edwardians. Also included are a selection of postcards, photographs and promotional items from the PTA archives. Victorians and Edwardians abroad is a fascinating glimpse into holidays as they were, just over a hundred years ago.

The Mediterranean Passion

'The only remarkable thing people can tell of their doings these days is that they have stayed at home', declared George Eliot in 1869. In Victorian and Edwardian Britain travel became the rage. The middle classes and the aristocracy seemed in a constant flux of arrival and departure, their luggage festooned with foreign labels. The revolution in transport made this possible. The Mediterranean Passion describes how the British travelled to the South and where they went. Drawing on what these travellers wrote, and what was written for them, it enriches our understanding of the Victorians and Edwardians by exploring the medical, religious, sexual and aesthetic dimensions of their journeys and illuminates an important but neglected aspect of British social and cultural history. '... combines scholarship with charm ... It could easily be taken to the Mediterranean on a holiday and read with pleasure on a sunny beach or in the shade of a church.' Asa Briggs, Financial Times 'I was impressed not merely by the range of his erudition - historical, cultural, literary, topographical, medical et al. - and by the depth of his enquiries into his subject but by the subtlety and refinement of his prose. He deals with very elusive, complex and culturally contradictory matters, upon which few, if any, could arrive at persuasive generalisations; yet he does so throughout the book, while his conclusion is a marvel of judgment, excelling even what his preceded.' David Selbourne (author of The Principle of Duty) The Mediterranean Passion was the joint winner of the 1987 Wolfson Literary Award for History.

Victorians and Edwardians Abroad

'Victorians and Edwardians abroad: the beginning of the modern holiday' reveals a story never told before: the early years of one of Britain's leading modern travel agencies, the Polytechnic Touring Association (PTA). Created in 1888 within Britain's first Polytechnic, the PTA was an emblem of the era. It served a growing mass of middle-class and lower middle-class consumers, who found for the first time that they had the time and money to take extended holidays, often abroad. This book explains the creation of the Polytechnic and the PTA, charting the expansion of the travel agency into continental Europe and beyond. 'Victorians and Edwardians abroad' uncovers the recollections of those who went on 'Poly holidays' before 1914: how they experienced the journeys, what they did when they reached their destinations and what they thought holidays should be about. For all the serious strictures from their social 'betters' about the educational and 'improving' aspects of travel, PTA holiday makers enjoyed themselves: liberating pork pies from train carriages, annoying foreign policemen and even beating the German Emperor to the last horses in town. Letters, articles and diaries of Poly holidays reveal a penchant for fun, even naughtiness, not often associated with the Victorians and Edwardians. Also included are a selection of postcards, photographs and promotional items from the PTA archives. Victorians and Edwardians abroad is a fascinating glimpse into holidays as they were, just over a hundred years ago.

Victorians at Home and Abroad

Published on the centenary of Queen Victoria's death, this illustrated book is an opportunity to revisit the achievements of the Victorian period, putting aside the attitudes and judgements of the 20th century. The Victorians were expansive, ambitious, imaginative and confident. Makers of the modern world, their extraordinary vision provoked revolutions in art and culture, in society, in science and industry, and in international trade. Their figurehead was Queen Victoria, whose coronation in 1838 heralded the most exciting period in modern history, when Britain emerged as a major imperial power trading nation.

Victorians Abroad

Vivid scenes and vignettes of Victorians abroad show how, despite the inconveniences and the occasional hazards they encountered, these intrepid travellers explored Africa, sailed on the Nile, and frequented fashionable cities and resorts

A Sport-loving Society

A selection of essays exploring the role of social institutions and political, economic and technological change in shaping the sport of middle class Victorians and Edwardians.

The Edwardians

Edwardian Britain is the quintessential age of nostalgia, often seen as the last long summer afternoon before the cataclysmic changes of the twentieth century began to take form. The class system remained rigidly in place and thousands were employed in domestic service. The habits and sports of the aristocracy were an everyday indulgence. But it was an age of invention as well as tradition. It saw the first widespread use of the motor car, the first aeroplane and the first use of the telegraph. It was also a time of vastly improved education and the public appetite for authors such as Conan Doyle, Rudyard Kipling and E. M. Forster was increased by greater literacy. There were signs too, of the corner history was soon to turn, with the problematic Boer War hinting at a new British weakness overseas and the drive for Votes for Women and Home Rule for Ireland pushing the boundaries of the social and political landscape. In this major work of history, Roy Hattersley has been given exclusive access to many new documents to produce this magisterial new appraisal of a legendary age.

The Victorians and Edwardians at Work

Of all eras of London's history, the Victorian and Edwardian city continues to stimulate the literary, visual, and popular imaginations like no other. This collection explores the unique relationship between the literary, and more broadly, artistic imagination and experience of the Victorian and Edwardian city. It includes some major figures such as Wordsworth, Dickens, and James, but also other writers and artists who are all but forgotten. Bringing together some of the leading scholars working on representations of Victorian and Edwardian London, this collection will be of interest to scholars, researchers and students working on literary London and more broadly the urban in the nineteenth- and early twentieth-centuries.

People of Victorian and Edwardian England

This is an engaging study of the place occupied by the City of London within British cultural life during the Victorian and Edwardian periods. Michie uses both literary and popular novels to examine socio-economic representations during this period.

A Mighty Mass of Brick and Smoke

Explores the diverse and often arcane world of English police detectives during the formative period of their profession, from 1842 until the First World War, with special emphasis on the famed detective branch established at Scotland Yard.

Guilty Money

A readable history of the British Royal Navy during the 19th century height of the British Empire.

The Ascent of the Detective

This open access book surveys drinking in Britain between the Licensing Act of 1869 and the wartime regulations imposed on alcohol production and consumption after 1914. This was a period marked by the expansion of the drink industry and by increasingly restrictive licensing laws. Politics and commerce co-existed with moral and medical concerns about drunkenness and combined, these factors pushed alcohol consumers into the public spotlight. Through an analysis of public and private records, medical texts and sociological studies, the book investigates the reasons why Victorians and Edwardians consumed alcohol in the ways that they did and explores the ideas about alcohol that circulated in the period. This book shows that they had many reasons for purchasing and consuming alcoholic substances and these were driven by broader social, cultural, medical and commercial factors. Although drunkenness may have been the most visible consequence of alcohol consumption, it was not the only type of drinking behaviour. Alcohol played an important social role in the everyday lives of Victorians and Edwardians where its consumption held many different meanings.

Rule Britannia

Sir Francis Bertie (from 1915 Lord Bertie of Thame) was a senior British diplomat of the late Victorian and Edwardian eras. He is perhaps best known for the thirteen years between 1905 and 1918 during which time he was Britain's ambassador in Paris, and it is with this period of his life that Dr Hamilton is mainly concerned. The book thus examines his contribution to the evolution and maintenance of the entente cordiale, the nature of his 'anti-Germanism', his influence upon Sir Edward Grey and other British statesmen, and the eclipse of professional diplomacy during the first world war. Above all it is a study of a man whom another British diplomat was later to describe as 'the very last of the great ambassadors'.

Drinking in Victorian and Edwardian Britain

Using some of the best photographs of the period this book shows Hampshire and its people at work and play, matched with a text made up of extracts from a variety of contemporary sources, including diaries, newspaper cuttings and other Hampshire writing of the time.

Bertie of Thame

An anthology of contemporary writings of the Victorian and Edwardian Oxfordshire period that were taken from books, magazines, letters and diaries. It is accompanied by a selection of contemporary photographs reproduced in sepia.

Victorian & Edwardian Hampshire

A new departure in Scottish and Irish migration studies
The Scottish diasporic communities closest to home—those which are part of what we sometimes term the 'near Diaspora'—are those we know least about. Whilst an interest in the overseas Scottish diaspora has grown in recent years, Scots who chose to settle in other parts of the United Kingdom have been largely neglected. This book addresses this imbalance. Scots travelled freely around the industrial centres of northern Britain throughout the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries and Belfast was one of the most important ports of call for thousands of Scots. The Scots played key roles in shaping Belfast society in the modern period: they were essential to its industrial development; they were at the centre of many cultural, philanthropic and religious initiatives and were welcomed by the host community accordingly. Yet despite their obvious significance, in staunchly Protestant, Unionist, and at times insular and ill at ease Belfast, individual Scots could be viewed with suspicion by their hosts, dismissed as 'strangers' and cast in the role of interfering outsiders.
Key Features
The only book-length scholarly study of the Scots in modern Ireland. Brings to light the fundamental importance of Scottish migration to Belfast society during the nineteenth century. Advances our knowledge and understanding of Scotland's 'near diaspora'. Highlights areas of tension in Ulster-Scottish relations during the Home Rule era. Puts forward a new agenda for a better understanding of British in-migration to Ireland in the modern period.

Victorian and Edwardian Oxfordshire

Motherhood, Respectability and Baby-Farming in Victorian and Edwardian London explores a largely obscured marketplace of motherhood that provided ways for women to manage the stigma of illegitimacy and their respectable identities within Victorian and Edwardian society. It focuses on the extent of women's 'dirty work', when maternal problem management was fundamental to the general maintenance of respectability and, by extension, to Empire and Civilisation. Despite its intrigue, history has struggled to understand and represent an uncomfortable but significant artefact of Western modernising society: 'baby-farming'. During a period when ideologies of respectability and civilisation arguably mattered most, the 'right' kind of parenthood – especially motherhood – became paramount. As the 'wrong' offspring could jeopardise a woman's chances of being respectable, a wholesale, informal, and somewhat clandestine marketplace emerged that catered to various maternal difficulties. Within this marketplace, a pregnancy or newborn child who may have compromised a woman's respectability could be 'disposed' of through different means, for a fee. From the Victorian period to the present, the commercialised maternal practices associated with baby-farming have become firmly established within collective consciousness as being synonymous with child murder, female pathology, and 'infanticide for hire'. This book provides a revised, far more complex, and nuanced narrative history which reveals all that was associated with baby-farming – including all possible outcomes – to be entirely natural, rational, and even necessary products of their time; an understandable outcome of the period's 'civilising offensive'. Motherhood, Respectability and Baby-Farming in Victorian and Edwardian London will be of great interest to students and scholars of criminology, sociology, history, and gender studies.

Scots in Victorian and Edwardian Belfast

The lives of ordinary men and women were played out in front of this rich and varied backdrop, and Victorian and Edwardian Kent captures the flavour of this bygone era.

The Illustrated London News Social History of Edwardian Britain

This, the third volume to appear in the New Oxford History of England, covers the period from the repeal of the Corn Laws to the dramatic failure of Gladstone's first Home Rule Bill. In his magisterial study of the mid-Victorian generation, Theodore Hoppen identifies three defining themes. The first he calls 'established industrialism' - the growing acceptance that factory life and manufacturing had come to stay. It was during these four decades that the balance of employment shifted irrevocably. For the first time in history, more people were employed in industry than worked on the land. The second concerns the 'multiple national identities' of the constituent parts of the United Kingdom. Dr Hoppen's study of the histories of Ireland, Scotland, Wales, and the Empire reveals the existence of a variety of particular and overlapping national traditions flourishing alongside the increasingly influential structure of the unitary state. The third defining theme is that of 'interlocking spheres' which the author uses to illuminate the formation of public culture in the period. This, he argues, was generated not by a series of influences operating independently from each other, but by a variety of intermeshed political, economic, scientific, literary and artistic developments. This original and authoritative book will define these pivotal forty years in British history for the next generation.

Motherhood, Respectability and Baby-Farming in Victorian and Edwardian London

This book traces the nature of change within the country community of England and Wales between 1870 and 1918--a period that was, in many respects, a watershed in British history. Horn reveals the powerful underlying stresses and tensions of rural life: people experienced the anxieties of agricultural recession, the declining influence of the landed classes, the diminishing support for religious institutions, and the disruption of many traditional aspects of rural life.

Victorian & Edwardian Kent

This Companion is designed for readers interested in the creation, production and interpretation of Victorian and Edwardian theatre in its own time and on the contemporary stage. The volume opens with an introduction surveying the theatre of the time, followed by an essay contextualizing the theatre within the culture as a whole. Succeeding chapters examine performance, production, and theatre, including the music, the actors, stagecraft and the audience; plays and playwriting and issues of class and gender. Chapters also deal with comedy, farce, melodrama, and the economics of the theatre.

The Mid-Victorian Generation

This volume discusses traditional and new resources for researching British literature of the Victorian and Edwardian ages and the ways in which those resources can be used in conjunction with one another.

The Changing Countryside in Victorian and Edwardian England and Wales

Over one hundred and fifty of the best photographic images from the turn of the twentieth century are reproduced here together with contemporary descriptions of Sussex folk and their lives.

The Cambridge Companion to Victorian and Edwardian Theatre

Victorian Britain made sport 'sporting' respectable, rule-bound and a nationwide obsession. Ancient sports, such as archery and fencing, were revived. New sports, such as tennis and cycling, were invented. Foreign sports, including polo, judo and lacrosse, were imported.

Literary Research and the Victorian and Edwardian Ages, 1830-1910

In industrial Lancashire the turn of the twentieth century could be seen as modern times dressed in bowler hats and moustaches. Photographs of street scenes taken in Manchester and Burnley, Oldham and Accrington in the 1890s take us to a world that had been disciplined and regimented by factory work for a century or more.

Victorian & Edwardian Sussex

An anthology of contemporary writings of the Victorian and Edwardian period that were taken from books, magazines, letters and diaries. It is accompanied by a selection of contemporary photographs reproduced in sepia.

The Edwardian Age

Bonnets, capes, caps, shawls, bodices, and crinolines as people actually wore them from 1840 to 1914. More than 200 photos depict aristocrats and members of the middle class as well as celebrities.

The Victorian and Edwardian Sportsman

An anthology of contemporary writings of Victorian and Edwardian North Riding period that were taken from books, magazines, letters and diaries. It is accompanied by a selection of contemporary photographs reproduced in sepia.

Victorian & Edwardian Lancashire

A superbly- illustrated account of the British system of education in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

Victorian & Edwardian Dorset

Reimagining Dinosaurs argues that transatlantic popular literature was critical for transforming the dinosaur into a cultural icon between 1880 and 1920

Victorian and Edwardian Fashion

This is a book to be read by a blazing fire on a winter's night, with the curtains drawn close and the doors securely locked. The unquiet souls of the dead, both as fictional creations and as 'real' apparitions, roam the pages of this haunting selection of ghost stories by Rex Collings. Some of these stories are classics while others are lesser-known gems unearthed from this vintage era of tales of the supernatural. There are stories from distant lands - 'Fisher's Ghost' by John Lang is set in Australia and 'A Ghostly Manifestation' by 'A Clergyman' is set in Calcutta. In this selection, Sir Walter Scott (a Victorian in spirit if not in fact), keeps company with Edgar Allen Poe, Sheridan Le Fanu and other illustrious masters of the genre.

Victorian & Edwardian North Riding

Games obsessed the Victorian and Edwardian public schools. The obsession has become widely known as athleticism. When it appeared in 1981, this book was the first major study of the games ethos which dominated the lives of many Victorian and Edwardian public schoolboys. Written with Professor Mangan's customary panache, it has become a classic, the seminal work on the social and cultural history of modern sport.

The Victorian And Edwardian Schoolchild

In the heyday of Empire just before the First World War, Lord Cromer was second only to Lord Curzon in fame and public esteem. In the days when Cairo and Calcutta represented the twin poles of British power in Asia and Africa, Cromer's commanding presence seemed to radiate the essential spirit of imperial rule. In this first modern biography Roger Owen charts the life of the man revered by the British and hated by today's Egyptians, the real ruler of Egypt for nearly a quarter of a century. A member of the famous City banking family of Baring Brothers, Cromer in his youth seemed to be distinguished mainly by lack of academic ability and a taste for the fashionable pursuits of his day. His first military posting, to Corfu, was welcomed by him on account of the excellent shooting to be had in the region. Roger Owen shows how, almost imperceptibly, his commitment to public service grew, due in part at least to his relationship with Ethel Errington who, after long delay, became his first wife. From the island outposts of the old British Empire, to India, the jewel in its crown, and finally to the new Empire in Africa, Cromer represented the might of Britain's Empire. Few imperial administrators had either his range of experience or his long practice of ruling different non-European peoples, at a time when the whole notion of Empire itself entered more and more into the metropolitan political debate. Roger Owen makes extensive use of Cromer's official correspondence, family papers, memoirs, and the personal letters of his friends and colleagues to explore all aspects of Cromer's life in imperial government. He examines his innovative role in international finance and his energetic re-engagement with Britain's troubled political life following his formal retirement in 1907. Finally, he assesses the sometimes bitter legacy of imperial rule left by Cromer.

Reimagining Dinosaurs in Late Victorian and Edwardian Literature

Gerald Howard-Smith's life is intriguing both in its own right and as a vehicle for exploring the world in which he lived. Tall, boisterous and sometimes rather irascible, he was one of the so-called 'Lost Generation' whose lives were cut short by the First World War. Brought up in London, and educated at Eton and Cambridge, he excelled both at cricket and athletics. After qualifying as a solicitor he moved to Wolverhampton and threw himself into the local sporting scene, making a considerable name for himself in the years before the First World War. Volunteering for military service in 1914, he was decorated for bravery before being killed in action two years later. Reporting his death, the War History of the South Staffordshire Regiment claimed that, 'In his men's eyes he lived as a loose-limbed hero, and in him they lost a very humorous and a very gallant gentleman.' As well as telling the fascinating story of Gerald Howard-Smith for the first time, this important new biography explores such complex and important issues as childhood and adolescence, class relations, sporting achievement, manliness and masculinity, metropolitan-provincial relationships, and forms of commemoration. It will therefore be of interest to educationalists, sports historians, local and regional historians, and those interested in class, gender and civilian-military relations – indeed all those seeking to understand the economic, social, and cultural life of late nineteenth and early twentieth-century Britain.

Classic Victorian and Edwardian Ghost Stories

Athleticism in the Victorian and Edwardian Public School