Fields & Mullins Families of Eastern Kentucky

True short stories are what make this book better than a straight biography. In these pages are stories; I have heard many times told by my grandparents, parents, and then some from my sisters & I that we have been a part of. My grandparents & parents were born and raised in Eastern Kentucky around Irishman Creek, and the holler dad lived in was known as Booger Town; now wait; that name is no worse than Possum Trot or Hog Holler which are real places as well. Allot of good stories come from my family as they worked hard to cut out a living in Eastern Kentucky. My short stories begin during the Great Depression Era; which begin with my grandparents, Fields & Mullins families. Dad/Bud was born in 1936, and mom/Fronia in 1940. They got the tail end feel of the Great Depression Era. However, this is a book of short stories of events that are funny, scary, and adventurous only two chapters out of 25 can be called part of a short biography; while the rest are for fun. Follow the exploits of Monroe, Mae, Newt, Lizzie, Bud & Fronia as well as other family members as the stories unfold; feel free to laugh out loud.

Fields & Mullins Families of Eastern Kentucky

As in the first book of my family short stories this is not a straight biography. This book is full of short stories as told by my grandparents, parents, and other family members as well as some of my own. This go around still has stories my papaw Monroe Fields was a part of, and let me tell you he was a character. Bud and Fronia my dad and mom are in some as well. The rest are full of my Aunts, Uncles, cousins as well as my sisters and myself. The stories begin in Eastern Kentucky, and end up in Scott County Indiana. My grandparents and parents were born and raised in Eastern Kentucky around Irishman Creek; well my aunts and uncles were to. The holler dad grew up in was name Booger Town, however that name is no worse than Hog Holler or Possum Trot which are real places as well. The holler dad grew up in is rich with funny and scary stories. My stories begin in the late depression era. Mom and dad was born near the end of the depression. Dad was born 1936 and mom in 1940. So follow the adventures of Monroe, Mae, Newt, Lizzie, Bud & Fronia as well as other family members as the stories unfold; feel free to laugh out loud or scratch your head, which ever feels right.

Field-Based Learning in Family Life Education

This book provides successful models for field-based learning experiences in Family Life Education. Each chapter provides an overview of the implementation details, including key points that others developing a plan could use to guide their thinking. Each chapter is grounded in previous scholarship and identifies how the elements of high-impact practices are addressed in the "real world". Contributors share their experiences implementing service learning, internships, and other educational platforms outside the classroom walls. This book also addresses both specific content areas within family life education, as well as general course management strategies.

Supporting Neurodivergent Children and Families

Supporting Neurodivergent Children and Families presents an innovative blueprint using academic literature, research and theory, to provide a best practice approach in equipping practitioners to support neurodivergent children and their families. The knowledge and insight provided in this book allows practitioners to effectively create supportive environments and plan appropriate practice responses, whilst never changing the child. By altering the system perspective and transcending the physical boundaries of space where the interaction occurs, a supportive environment is created, thus providing more positive outcomes. The blend of practice experiences, tangible case studies and theory prompts the reader to critically reflect on their practice and potentially integrate new, innovative changes to their approach. This comprehensive and thought-provoking read is not only ideal for students and professionals who interact with neurodiverse families, but also practitioners and educators looking to alter their practical approach to understanding neurodivergent children and their families.

Sourcebook of Family Theories and Methods

Origins We call this book on theoretical orientations and methodological strategies in family studies a sourcebook because it details the social and personal roots (i.e., sources) from which these orientations and strategies flow. Thus, an appropriate way to preface this book is to talk first of its roots, its beginnings. In the mid 1980s there emerged in some quarters the sense that it was time for family studies to take stock of itself. A goal was thus set to write a book that, like Janus, would face both backward and forward a book that would give readers both a perspective on the past and a map for the future. There were precedents for such a project: The Handbook of Marriage and the Family edited by Harold Christensen and published in 1964; the two Contemporary Theories about the Family volumes edited by Wesley Burr, Reuben Hill, F. Ivan Nye, and Ira Reiss, published in 1979; and the Handbook of Marriage and the Family edited by Marvin Sussman and Suzanne Steinmetz, then in production.

This book examines the Japanese diaspora from the historical archaeology perspective—drawing from archaeological data, archival research, and often oral history—and explores current trends in archaeological scholarship while also looking at new methodological and theoretical directions. The chapters include research on pre-War rural labor camps or villages in the US, as well as research on western Canada (British Columbia), Peru, and the Pacific Islands (Hawai'i and Tinian), incorporating work on understudied urban and cemetery sites. One of the main themes explored in the book is patterns of cultural persistence and change, whether couched in terms of maintenance of tradition, “Americanization,” or the formation of dual identities. Other themes emerging from these chapters include consumption, agency, stylistic analysis, community lifecycles, social networks, diaspora and transnationalism, gender, and sexuality. Also included are discussions of trauma, racialization, displacement, labor, heritage, and community engagement. Some are presented as fully formed interpretive frameworks with substantial supporting data, while others are works in progress or tentative attempts to push the boundaries of our field into innovative new territory. This book is of interest to students and researchers in historical archaeology, anthropology, sociology of migration, diaspora studies and historiography. Previously published in International Journal of Historical Archaeology Volume 25, issue 3, September 2021

Almost all of us have a tradesman or craftsman Ð a butcher, baker or candlestick maker Ð somewhere in our ancestry, and Ad•le Emm's handbook is the perfect guide to finding out about them Ð about their lives, their work and the world they lived in. She introduces the many trades and crafts, looks at their practices and long traditions, and identifies and explains the many sources you can go to in order to discover more about them and their families. Chapters cover the guilds, the merchants, shopkeepers, builders, smiths and metalworkers, cordwainers and shoemakers, tailors and dressmakers, coopers, wheelwrights and carriage-makers, and a long list of other trades and crafts. The training and apprenticeships of individuals who worked in these trades and crafts are described, as are their skills and working conditions and the genealogical resources that preserve their history and give an insight into their lives. A chapter covers the general sources that researchers can turn to – the National Archives, the census, newspapers, wills, and websites – and gives advice on how to use them. Ad•le Emm's introduction will be fascinating reading for anyone who is researching the social or family history of trades and crafts.

Tracing Your Trade & Craftsman Ancestors

Based on ten years of collaborative, community-based research, this book examines race and racism in a mixed-heritage Native American and African American community on Long Island's north shore. Through excavations of the Silas Tobias and Jacob and Hannah Hart houses in the village of Setauket, Christopher Matthews explores how the families who lived here struggled to survive and preserve their culture despite consistent efforts to marginalize and displace them over the course of more than 200 years. He discusses these forgotten people and the artifacts of their daily lives within the larger context of race, labor, and industrialization from the early nineteenth to the mid-twentieth century. A Struggle for Heritage draws on extensive archaeological, archival, and oral historical research and sets a remarkable standard for projects that engage a descendant community left out of the dominant narrative. Matthews demonstrates how archaeology can be an activist voice for a vulnerable population's civil rights as he brings attention to the continuous, gradual, and effective economic assault on people of color living in a traditional neighborhood amid gentrification. Providing examples of multiple approaches to documenting hidden histories and silenced pasts, this study is a model for public and professional efforts to include and support the preservation of historic communities of color. A volume in the series Cultural Heritage Studies, edited by Paul A. Shackel A Struggle for Heritage Publication of the paperback edition made possible by a Sustaining the Humanities through the American Rescue Plan grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Jacob Zook, an eighteen year-old Amish farm boy, feels trapped between his religious heritage and his fascination with the world outside of his small Pennsylvania town. These feelings bring him into direct conflict with his very traditional father, who tries to raise his family by the rules of 'the Ordnung,' even though they are living in exile away from the Amish community. Jacob's only option is to leave his family, including his beloved mother and younger brother, Abraham, in order to set out and make a new life for himself. Unfortunately for Jacob, he embarks on this adventure on the 29th of June, 1863. He has no way of knowing it, but his entire world is about to be turned upside during the first three days of July – in the small town he calls home...Gettysburg. His life and his beliefs will be changed forever.

A Struggle for Heritage

This book highlights my journey of rising from the cotton fields of Alabama to the city of Chicago where I thought would be a palace. Chicago was certainly not a palace but it was a place of adventure and excitement where I found God, Education and purpose. Ludearest Mullins grew up on a farm in rural Alabama where her parents were share croppers and she was the youngest of 14 children. Coming from such a large family, she always had a dream and a vision of going beyond people's expectations and limitations. She retired from Childserv Foster Care Agency and graduated from Grace Seminary with a Bachelor and Master's in Theology. She also graduated from Chicago Professional Business College and spent 2 years at Harold Washington City College majoring in Business Education. Her family named her the "Miracle Mullins" because of what God continues do in her struggles and seeing the power of God manifest in her life. After many near death experiences, her motto became "It's not what it looks like." She has been in ministry for over 40 years, manifested miracles, signs and wonders follows her life. She is affectionately known as "fire ball Mullins" because of her powerful prayer ministry. She was a Pastor's wife for over 24 years and has 3 children and 12 grandchildren. She serves as a Minister and Intercessory Prayer Leader at

This book describes a novel and popular method for the theoretical and computational study of phase transformations and materials processing in condensed and soft matter. The field theoretic method for the study of phase transformations in material systems, also known as the phase-field method, allows one to analyze different stages of transformations within a unified framework. It has received significant attention in the materials science community due to many recent successes in solving or illuminating important problems. In a single volume, this book addresses the fundamentals of the method starting from the basics of the field theoretic method along with its most important theoretical and computational results and some of the most advanced recent results and applications. Now in a revised and expanded second edition, the text is updated throughout and includes material on the classical theory of phase transformations. This book serves as both a primer in the area of phase transformations for those new to the field and as a guide for the more seasoned researcher. It is also of interest to historians of physics.

The year is 2334; twenty years has passed since the evil Shadow Nod as well as the 2 Gorgon's Jacob and Pap were destroyed by Ashley and her friends. Ashley and the residents of New Hope and Sunset have enjoyed years of peace and quiet with only a few bumps in the road as time moved forward. However, evil has reared its nasty head once more, but past events may hold the key to stopping a possible devastating future. In preparation for what the future holds; Leon was trained many years by a being from his future, which no one beside him could see. His training was watched by the young people; how strange it was for them to see him talking to thin air. Salvation for their future, home and friends pushed him to learn all that he could. Who is the evil one or ones they need to track down? Can this evil be someone they know or is it new to them altogether. John Rogue one of the original Chosen Ones and his adopted daughter Tyla who was at one time a Gorgon with the tail of a snake, and the upper body of a human. Her race had evolved from the old race, which had snakes for hair to the way they look now; a head full of hair, but still having a snake tail. She now has human legs with the help of magic, and looks totally human. She, and her adopted father search for her long lost mother, who was turned into a stone statue centuries ago. A man by the name of Ron Bowman stumbles across a portal in the countryside one day. On the other side of the portal opening was a world of wonder, which he could have never thought really existed. Upon entering that world he saw creatures, which did not live in his world; they were strange and some very dangerous. Races lived here that he had only seen in movies; as well as dragons of all kinds. What is his role to be in this new world; called Realm 299? Could he be here to help prevent evil from destroying this wondrous new world, and possibly all the other Realms? Some old faces will show up along the way. Ride the rollercoaster and find the answers to the questions. Read on those answers await. If you like the Lord of the Rings, Narnia or the Golden Compass; then you should like my series; Tracks of the Dark Wing. There are 4 books in the series for now with the fifth to come.

Cantwell Greene Families of East Tennessee

The underlying theme uniting the papers of this volume is the quest for a further understanding of human behavior. The similarities between the behaviors of other primates and humans have captivated us even before a science arose. But what is the justification for making such comparisons? Comparisons, like classifications, can be made on any basis whatever. The aim in making any scientific comparison is the same as doing a classification. That is, one attempts to make the comparison on a "natural" basis. Natural, in this case, means that the comparison reflects processes that occur in nature. The fundamental paradigm for making natural comparisons in biology is based on evolutionary theory. The evolutionary paradigm is inherently one of comparisons between and within species. Conversely, it is impossible to begin to make cross species comparisons without making, implicitly at least, evolutionary arguments. But evolution is a complex construct of theories (Lewis, 1980), and comparisons can be made out of different theoretical bases. For the sake of this discussion we can combine varieties of sub-theories into two categories: those having to do with descent with modification, and those concerned with the mechanics of evolutionary change--notably natural selection.

The Vanderpool Family of Eastern Kentucky: The Vanderpool family of eastern Kentucky

This book provides an original insight into how families of origin of Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender (GLBT) people are involved in negotiating meanings and experiences of sexuality and intimacy, an underexplored dimension of queer family life. Delving into the perspectives of families of origin and showing the complexity and heterogeneity of the ways people with their different gender and sexual identities "do" families across generations, it contributes to queering the very distinction between families of origin and families of choice and questions the (hetero)normative assumptions about forms and boundaries of family this distinction rests upon. A focus on marginal contexts, such as Southern Europe, and on marginal subjects, like bisexuals or black lesbians, is proposed as a way to challenge the universality of privileged narratives within heteronormativity, homonormativity and anglocentrism, and to reveal unexpected resources families of origin use to make sense of GLBT identities and lived experiences. The book poses a crucial question: how can alliances along family ties develop on the basis of shared stories of family diversity and marginalised identities, rather than of loving (and normative) support to GLBT people in need and an advocacy in their name from a position of heterosexual privilege? This book was originally published in Journal of GLBT Family Studies.

" This text, the only book of its kind, describes recent innovations in defining and assessing family problems and family violence. It provides a framework for improving global assessment of relational processes as addressed in the ICD-11. The book includes a complete set of practical clinical and public health tools--easily implemented across a wide range of settings--for defining, screening, and assessing family violence in accordance with these new definitions. It reviews the impact of family violence on all aspects of physical and mental health and economic wellbeing, including global considerations of cross-cultural relationship assessment, and provides recommendations for modifications and cross-cultural validation.
