A quick attendance poll

Florida's Invasive Reptiles and Amphibians Dr. Zack Jud Florida Oceanographic Society January 5, 2021

Invasive vs. Exotic What exactly is an invasive species?? Introduced to an area where they didn't occur naturally • Establish a breeding population Spread rapidly and cause severe environmental harm So what are exotic species?

Biological Invasion Model Potential invader begins as a resident in its native or a donor region.

Potential invader is transported to a new area and is intercepted without becoming

Charismatic invaders make for good news stories

But the "big" and "scary" invaders aren't always the worst

Some invasive species just don't sound like a big deal

What traits increase a species' invasion success?

Novel defense mechanisms

Predator naïveté, enemy release

Predator naïveté? Prey naïveté?

Introduction pathways (not always clear... but they often are!)

Natural Range Expansions •Black-bellied whistling duck (rare pre-1950) Cattle egret (absent pre-1952)

Truly accidental introductions Often related to shipping and commerce (10%) •Greenhouse frog (Dade County 1860s from Cuba) •Brown anole (Florida Keys 1880s from Cuba and Bahamas) •Cuban tree frog (Florida Keys 1920s from Cuba)

Intentional releases (non-pet trade) Often related to biological control (only 2 herp species in Florida)

Bringing us to the pet trade Both accidental and intentional releases in Florida (86%)

Can invasive species cause rapid evolutionary changes in native species?

Parasite transfer
