1. Look at the images. Draw a circle around the fossil that was from an aquatic organism. Draw a square around the fossil that was from a terrestrial organism.

2. What should you do to learn about changes in a habitat over time?

Most fossils are often the hard parts of once-living things that are preserved in rock. But an organism's soft parts can also be preserved. Which materials can preserve the soft parts of organisms? Select all that apply.

Select all the statements that correctly tell how scientists use tools to dig up fossils. Remember what a paleontologist goes through when they discover a fossil.

In which type of environment did the organism that left this fossil live?

Select the correct answer to finish the sentence.

Which type of environment did this fossil live in?

Number the steps into the correct order most fossils are preserved in rock.

Which statements are true about this animal?

In the next video, we will start a new unit, Unit 7, where we explore how weather is predicted and measured.
