Intro

When A Sapling is Planted is the Nobel Prize acceptance speech by Wangari Maathai.

Wangari Maathai was a Kenyan

She got Nobel Prize in 2004 for her contribution to sustainable development, tree planting, peace and democracy.

She founded the Green Belt Movement to focus on the planting of trees, environmental conservation and women's rights.

In this speech Wangari Maathai tells the importance of tree planting and the need of protecting the nature.

She speaks of the various environmental damages and their effects on the life of rural people.

She spoke from her childhood experiences and observations of nature in rural Kenya.

As a result of large scale deforestation the African women lacked firewood, clean drinking water, balanced diets, shelter and income.

In Africa women are the primary caretakers. They till the land and feed their families.

In her opinion the introduction of commercial farming causes much damage to the environment.

It would replace household food crops.

In short when the environment is destroyed, plundered and mismanaged, quality of life is undermined.

Planting trees is the only lasting remedy to address this issue.

Wangari Maathai together with the members and activists of the Green Belt Movement, planted over 30 million trees

Wangari Maathai says that it is high time humanity stopped threatening its life support system and took initiatives to heal the wounds of mother earth.

She firmly believes that there can be no development without sustainable management of the environment in a democratic and peaceful space.

So she exhorts world leaders to expand democratic space and to ensure fair societies.
