In 1609 Henry Hudson, an English sea captain and explorer was hired by the Flemish Protestant emigres running the Dutch East India Company (VOC) and ended up exploring the waters of the east coast of North America aboard the yacht Halve Maen Upon returning to the Netherlands, Hudson reported having found a fertile land and an amicable people and was the catalyst for Dutch merchant- traders to fund more expeditions

On March 17, 1614, the States General the governing body of the Republic of the Seven United Netherlands

The legislators preferred the formula of trading posts with small populations and a military presence to protect them, which was working in the East Indies

Not until 1654, when forced to surrender Dutch Brazil and forfeit the richest sugar-producing area in the world did the company belatedly focus on colonization in North America

The first trading partners of the New Netherlanders were the Algonquian who lived in the area

The Dutch depended on the indigenous population to capture, skin and deliver pelts, especially beaver, to them the first of many garrisoned trading stations to be built

Confederacy

conquered the Mahicans, who retreated to Connecticut as they controlled the upstate Adirondacks and Mohawk Valley through the center of New York

Over time, to attract settlers to the region of the Hudson River built by the crew of the "Tijger" (Tiger) a Dutch ship under the command of Captain Adriaen Block, which had caught fire while sailing on the Hudson where commerce could be conducted with Algonquian and Iroquois population, went up

In 1617 Dutch colonists built a fort at the confluence of the Hudson and Mohawk Rivers

In 1624 New Netherland became a province of the Dutch Republic

The mouth of the Hudson River was selected as the ideal place for initial settlement

The threat of attack from other European colonial powers prompted the directors of the Dutch West India Company to formulate a plan to protect the entrance to the Hudson River where a citadel to contain Fort Amsterdam was being laid out at the direction of Willem Verhulst.

By the end of 1625, the site had been staked out directly south of Bowling Green

Willem Verhulst, who, with his council, was responsible for the selection of Manhattan as a permanent place of settlement and for situating Fort Amsterdam

To legally safeguard the settlers' investments, possessions and farms on Manhattan island

Minuit negotiated the "purchase" of Manhattan from the Manahatta band of Lenape than the value of those same goods in the developed market of the Netherlands

The New Amsterdam settlement had a population of approximately 270 people, including infants

The port city outside the walls of the fort, New Amsterdam would become a major hub for trade between North America, the Caribbean and Europe the Commonality of New Amsterdam included the isle of Manhattan Staaten Eylandt, Pavonia and the Lange Eylandt towns decided to build a stone church within the fort

Willem Kieft was Director of New Netherland from 1638 until 1647

Though the colony had grown somewhat before his arrival, it did not flourish

At this time a large number of Indian tribes who had signed mutual defense treaties with the Dutch were gathering near the colony due to widespread warfare and dislocation among the tribes to the north

Subsequently, when a colonist was murdered in an act of revenge for some killings that had taken place years earlier and the Indians refused to turn over the perpetrator Kieft suggested they be taught a lesson by ransacking their villages

In an attempt to gain public support he created a citizens commission, the Council of Twelve Men

Within days the surrounding tribes, in a unique move, united and rampaged the countryside forcing settlers who escaped to find safety at Fort Amsterdam

For two years, a series of raids and reprisals raged across the province

Disenchanted with the previous governor, his ignorance of indigenous peoples the unresponsiveness of the WIC to their rights and requests the colonists submitted to the States General the Remonstrance of New Netherland condemned the WIC for mismanagement and demanded full rights as citizens of province of the Netherlands

Petrus Stuyvesant arrived in New Amsterdam in 1647

the only governor of the colony to be called Director-General

Demands were made upon Stuyvesant from all sides: the West India Company, the States General

Discontent in New Amsterdam led locals to dispatch Adriaen van der Donck back to the United Provinces

After nearly three years of legal and political wrangling, the Dutch Government came down against the WIC granting the colony a measure of self-government and recalling Stuyvesant in April 1652

Military battles were occurring in the Caribbean and along the South Atlantic coast which was the Dutch settlement on the west bank of Hudson River between Beverwyk and New Amsterdam both in church and state, and to install the Anglican government as in old England

The directors of the Dutch West India Company concluded that the religious freedom of the colony

On August 27, 1664, four English frigates sailed into New Amsterdam's harbor

They met no resistance because numerous citizens' requests for protection by a suitable Dutch garrison against the deplorable and tragic massacres by the natives had gone unheeded

That lack of adequate fortification, ammunition, and manpower as well as the indifference from the West India Company to previous pleas for reinforcement of men and ships against the continual troubles threats, encroachments and invasions of the English neighbors made New Amsterdam defenseless

Stuyvesant negotiated successfully for good terms from his too powerful enemies the principle of religious tolerance in Article VIII

Within six years the nations were again at war and in August 1673 the Dutch recaptured New Netherland the republic was financially bankrupt

The States of Zeeland had tried to convince the States of Holland to take on the responsibility for the New Netherland province, but to no avail

In November 1674, the Treaty of Westminster concluded the war and ceded New Netherland to the English outside the city, called the Great Bouwerie, beyond which stretched the woods and swamps of the village of Haarlem

He died in August 1672 and his body was entombed in the east wall of St. Mark's Church in-the-Bowery

In addition to founding the largest metropolis on the North American continent a secular broadmindedness and mercantile pragmatism

It was during the early British colonial period that the New Netherlanders actually developed the land and society that would have an enduring impact on the Capital District, the Hudson Valley, North Jersey

The colors of the flag of New York City, of Albany and of Nassau County are those of the old Dutch flag.

The seven arrows in the lion's left claw in the Republic's coat of arms was a precedent for the thirteen arrows in the eagle's left claw in the Great Seal of the United States

The tradition of Santa Claus is thought to have developed from a (gift-giving) celebration of the feast of Saint Nicholas on December 6 each year by the settlers of New Netherland

The Dutch Sinterklaas was Americanized into "Santa Claus" by the Constitution of the Republic of the United Provinces
